Life on This Planet Constant Battle Between Man and Hordes of Insect Life

MANY OTHER PEOPLE EAT 'EM

Grasshoppers Are Favored Diet of Many Savages and Please Civilization When Disguised

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN

WASHINGTON, D. C., May 29.—Not long ago Dr. L. O. Howard, chief of the bureau of entomology, which is that branch of the department of agriculture devoted to the study of insects, caused to be dug up on the department grounds a number of big, fat, white grubs, or garden slugs of the sort you frequently turn up when digging for bait. These were not intended for bait, however. Dr. Howard turned them over to another government scientist, Dr. Langworthy, who bears the title of chief of the bureau of home economics, and knows more about cooking than anybody else in Washington. Dr. Langworthy presented the worms to his most skillful chef, who made of them a rich broth, thickened with chopped lettuce leaves and seasoned with salt, pepper and paprika. In this unusual form the grubs returned to the initiator of the enterprise, Dr. Howard, who consumed a cup of the worm soup with great gusto and proclaimed it delicious. One of his assistants courageously backed the chef, and he, too, said the soup was good. There was no argument.

Done on Principle

These conservative scientists were not merely indulging an exotic taste for an insectivorous diet. Neither of them had ever knowingly consumed any insects before. But they shared a serious scientific conviction that insects are an excellent human food, which is being almost entirely neglected by civilized man; and they wished at once to put their beliefs to the test, and to give a practical demonstration of the edibility of bugs.

The argument in favor of eating insects is literally unanswerable. Likewise the prejudice among most civilized peoples against eating insects is almost insuperable. So the situation is a deadlock. A sufficient number of exalted examples, like that of Dr. Howard, might suffice to break it. If New York society, for example, would take up cockchafer on toast and grasshopper omelette, there is little doubt but what these dishes would come into general favor. An administration really desirous of lowering the cost of living might do much by having some of the more savory native insects served at the White House table. Dr. Howard has made a beginning. Let who has the courage follow him.

Food Grows Scarce

The matter is of far more moment than appears at a glance. The population of the earth is increasing at a great rate and every where food is becoming more difficult to obtain. Especially is this true of animal food. Red meat, fish, shell-fish, and the crustaceans are all becoming scarce. The last of these, the crustaceans, including the lobsters, shrimps and crabs, are first cousins of the insects, having the same sort of flesh and structure. Yet the lobster soars to unheard of prices and is threatened with extinction, while his near relative, the June bug, has escaped all consideration as an article of diet.

Our refusal to eat insects is inconsistent, squeamish and ridiculous—that is apparent. That is not the end of the matter, however. It may be stated with almost literal truth that sooner or later we will have to eat the insects in self defense. Modern (Continued on Page 5, Col. 4)

Greek War Party Renews Demand Greece Enter the War on the Side of the Allies

SERB ARMY LANDS IN GREECE

Forces Estimated at from 80,000 to 100,000 Reach Saloniki from Corfu

LONDON, May 29.—A Bulgarian army of 25,000, led by German officers and supported by German cavalry, has crossed the Greek border, Salonika dispatches say. They have captured Fort Rupel, have reached the site of the Demir Hissar bridge recently blown up by the French and are swarming over the Strumitza valley. Forts Dragotin and Satevo have also fallen.

The invaders control the railroad from Salonika to Kravalla, which is the key to Seres, and which opens up an almost uninterrupted passage to Sofia. Brisk fighting between Greeks and Bulgars occurred at several points along the frontier.

A detachment from the Greek garrison at Fort Rupel fired on the Bulgars, before evacuating the position. The Greeks were incensed, according to Salonika dispatches today, because the Bulgars entered the fort before the time they had stipulated for its evacuation expired. The Bulgars returned the fire, the Greeks withdrawing without serious casualties on either side.

The Greek government has warned border commanders to take every precaution to prevent serious encounters. Only 2,000 Bulgarians took part in the advance into Greek territory according to the best available information here. It is the general belief here that the Bulgarians occupied Fort Rupel, Dragotina and Satevo merely as a defensive measure to guard against the allied attack.

Venizelos Takes Advantage
The Greek war party led by ex-Premier Venizelos is using the Bulgarian invasion to the best advantage in renewing the demand that Greece enter the war on the side of the allies. It is believed here, however, that King Constantine is unwilling to plunge his country into war.

New Record Set to Carry from Chicago to St. Paul Sedative Drug That Was Not Used

ONLY ONE ITEM IN COSTLY FIGHT

Ten Days' Battle in Vain to Save Empire Builder from Death Cost $25,000

Carrying two ounces of a sedative drug which could not be found in the Twin Cities for the dying empire constructor, a special train consisting of two coaches and an engine dashed through La Crosse Saturday night in a trip which set a new record between Chicago and St. Paul. It was only one of the items in the last vain struggle to save James J. Hill from death, a battle of ten days' duration, which is estimated to have cost $25,000 at the least.

The special train which hurled the tiny vial of sleeping-potion through La Crosse Saturday night would have cost any one but a railroad owner $2,400. Altogether, special trains that rushed men and materials back and forth in mobilizing the country's best defenses against death for the benefit of "Jim" Hill, cost $10,000. There were other specials, but they were donated by lines other than those of Hill ownership. Specialists employed cost $15,000.

The special train over the Burlington from Chicago Saturday brought two ounces of sedative that was never used. The train was pulled by the heaviest and fastest of Burlington engines and was given full right of track. It consisted of two coaches and an engine. The distance of 431 miles from Chicago to St. Paul was made in 483 minutes. From Grand Crossing at La Crosse to St. Paul, a distance of 128 miles, was made in 126 minutes. This special broke all Chicago-St. Paul speed records.

After the two ounces of precious sedative were secured, specialists changed their minds and used only sedatives which could easily be secured in St. Paul.

A second special train, carrying Mr. Hill's daughter, left Chicago early this morning. It is scheduled to pass La Crosse at 3:45 this afternoon. Extra engines were sent out from the Burlington roundhouse here to points midway between Savannah, Ill., and St. Paul, the ends of the La Crosse division, to be at hand in case of a break down to the engine drawing the special train. An engine is waiting at Grand Crossing with steam up, to couple on to the train without delay.

ONE SHORT CHANGE

IN CIRCUS VISIT

Police Round Up a Dozen Suspects and Hold Them Until the Show Has Gone

One complaint of short-changing was the only circus day trouble which came to the attention of the police. And that one man got his money without police interference, it was said at central station today, while the chief breathed easier with the circus and its followers safely out of this dark-streeted city.

That the city escaped, however, is probably due in no small measure to the vigilance of the police, who rounded up a dozen suspects early Saturday and kept them impounded until Sunday morning, when they were released and advised to disappear. They were young men, whom the police today declared to be of the pickpocket type.

The residence district was carefully patrolled Saturday night by all available members of the force, the uniformed men being put in plain-clothes for the service.

Seven "jag" cases were before Police Justice C. W. Hunt this morning, most of them arrested Saturday evening. They were all visitors from neighboring towns. Judge Hunt lined them up this morning and fined them in two batches. All pleaded guilty.

Mystery Man Relative of Nurse Who Says She Heard Marian Lambert Threaten Suicide

MURDER FANS THROG COURTROOM

Eight Permanent Jurors Selected and Prosecution Hopes for Start of Testimony Soon

COURT ROOM, WAUKEGAN, Ill., May 29.—Crowds of "murder fans" braved a drizzling rain today and packed the court room where Will Orpet is on trial for Marian Lambert's murder. They were confident that a jury would be completed today and that the trial would be actually under way within a few hours.

State's Attorney Day, it was said, was prepared to ask the death penalty in his opening address. A "phantom witness" appeared today in the case. The mystery surrounding him was not cleared by either defense or state. He is Joseph Hartman, cousin of a nurse who is said to have heard Marian threaten suicide. He was found at Toledo, Ohio, and is now under close guard.

Eight permanent jurors and three tentatively selected were in the box when court opened today. A new venire of fifty, the eighth called, was on hand for use in an emergency.

Ralph Potter of Orpet's counsel protested the order alleged to have been issued by State's Attorney Day ordering the arrest of Kenneth Hawkins, a law partner of the former, in Toledo yesterday. Hawkins was in the court room today.

Judge Donnelly also issued an order denying the defense access to the telegraph file of the Western Union Telegraph company in Waukegan and Lake Forest. A telegram, the importance of which both the state and the defense refuse to divulge, is involved. Day has the telegram but promised to turn it over to Orpet's attorneys later in the day.

May Irwin, the actress, appeared in the court room today and demanded to talk to Orpet. Her request was denied. She said she believed Orpet innocent.

ST. PAUL MOTOR
BOATERS HERE TO

Eleven Cruise Down in a Fleet of Four Boats and Dine at Shore Acres

ST. PAUL WILL HAVE SPEEDER

Will Build Duplicate of "Miss Minneapolis" to Compete with Her and "Miss Detroit"

Eleven members of the St. Paul Motor Boat club spent Sunday in La Crosse in the interests of the Ninth Annual regatta of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, to be held in St. Paul July 4, and 5.

The visitors cruised from St. Paul to La Crosse in four of the St. Paul boats, the Merlin, Gaffer, Apollo and Blitzen and were entertained at Sunday dinner by W. V. Kidder, secretary of the Mississippi Valley Power Boat association, at his cottage in "Shore Acres."

The St. Paul delegation announced that St. Paul, as well as Minneapolis, will have a $10,000 racing boat in the events. It will be an exact duplicate of "Miss Minneapolis," and very much like "Miss Detroit," which won the gold cup last year on Lake George. A race between these three boats, each capable of better than 55 miles an hour, is expected to be one of the big features of the race meet.

The visitors were: on board the Merlin, J. C. Poore and J. C. Poore, Jr.; on board the Gaffer, W. F. Mueller, Louis A. Green, Paul Perl and F. E. Mitchell; on board the Apollo, Charles Arend, secretary of the St. Paul Motor Boat club, A. L. Hottinger and Al Cree; on board the Blitzen, F. A. Marko and G. J. Pschandi.

The party left yesterday afternoon on their return trip.

Members of the Grand Army, the Spanish war veterans, their women's auxiliaries and the state militia gathered in the First Baptist and St. Paul's Universalist churches yesterday morning for the annual Memorial day message from the pulpit. Both churches were crowded, and special music and flowers added to the dignity of the services.

Autos for Veterans
Memorial day observances planned for tomorrow follow the same line as in years past. The surviving members of the Grand Army will take part in the procession which will start from Court House square at 9 o'clock. Captain F. H. Fowler of company M will be marshal of the procession. The old soldiers will ride in automobiles which citizens have volunteered for the service.

Graves have already been marked for decoration tomorrow. The chief services will be held in Oak Grove cemetery, where General Order No. 11 will be read, and James Thompson will deliver an address. The North side band and the boy scouts' drum corps will furnish music for the march, and hundreds of school children are expected to take part. Both companies of militia and the Spanish War veterans will march.

The lesson of the Civil war as applied to contemporary patriotism was the subject chosen by Rev. George R. Longbrake, pastor of the Universalist church, and chaplain of the "Shooting Third," two companies of which sat in the pews in front of him.

"The Nation's 'In Memoriam'" was Rev. W. J. Peacock's sermon, a discourse upon the tradition and meaning of Memorial Day. The members of Wilson Colwell Post of the Grand Army with their Relief corps, attended his service. A large audience beside augmented the attendance. F. W. Rawstron, organizer, had worked out a special music for the occasion.

Claim Germans Repulsed
PARIS, May 29.—In a five hour battle west last night on the west bank of the Meuse, two most violent German attacks from the Corbeaux woods, west of Cumieres were completely repulsed, the war office announced today.

The Germans launched the first attack at seven o'clock, attempting to recapture the trenches taken by the French in Thursday's fighting. The struggle continued for more than an hour, the Germans finally withdrawing into the ravine east of Dead Man's Hill.

The second attack began before midnight. Desperate fighting went on under the ghastly glare of illuminating bombs until the Germans were again hurled back into the woods. East of the Meuse, violent artillery struggles continued throughout the night in the region of Vaux, but there were no important infantry actions. In Lorraine, a German reconnaissance near Parroy, was repulsed.

French aviators took part in fifteen aerial fights Sunday, bringing down three German fliers near Montheois, Berry Au Bac and west of Rheims. Two other German planes were brought down by French cannon mounted on motor cars, one north of Avocourt and another in the region of Forges.

New York Daughter Rushes from Special Train Into Death Chamber Hour After Father Dies

Medical Lights Who Have Attended Royalty Labor to Save Life of Great Railroader

ST. PAUL, Minn., May 29.—James J. Hill, owner of three great railroad systems, and two great steamboat systems, died at his home here at 9:43 a. m., today. His death followed an operation to drain a carbuncle formed at the end of the magnate's intestine.

Just fifty years ago today Hill was almost penniless. He owned the majority of stock in the Great Northern railroad, which he fathered through life, the Northern Pacific railroad, the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy railroad, the Great Northern Pacific Steamship company, plying between Seattle and the Orient, and the Northern Steamship company, plying the Great Lakes. It was steamboats and fuel upon which Hill placed his faith as a youth and these, with the development of the Great Northern railroad, were the foundation of his wealth.

About an hour after the great magnate died, his daughter, Mrs. A. M. Beard, New York, rushed here by special train, arrived. She was the only child not at the bedside when death came. Mrs. Samuel Hill, Washington, after a strenuous race against time, rushed into the death chamber, just in time to grasp the hand of her father as the great life of the empire builder passed out.

Other Children Present
Other children and the widow were present. They are James N. Hill, New York; Mrs. George T. Slade, St. Paul; Mrs. Egil Boeckmann, St. Paul; Mrs. Michael Gavin, New York; Miss Clara Hill and Louis Hill. The latter two live at home. Walter Hill arose from a sick-bed at Hallowell, Minn., to come to his father. His widow, who stood by him so faithfully during his youthful days of near poverty, collapsed when Hill died.

"The end came quietly," said an official statement. "Mr. Hill became unconscious a few hours before. There were no death agonies."

Age Against Him
Physicians today reiterated their opinion that Hill would have lasted through the operation they thought inconsequential for a young man, were it not for his age, 78.

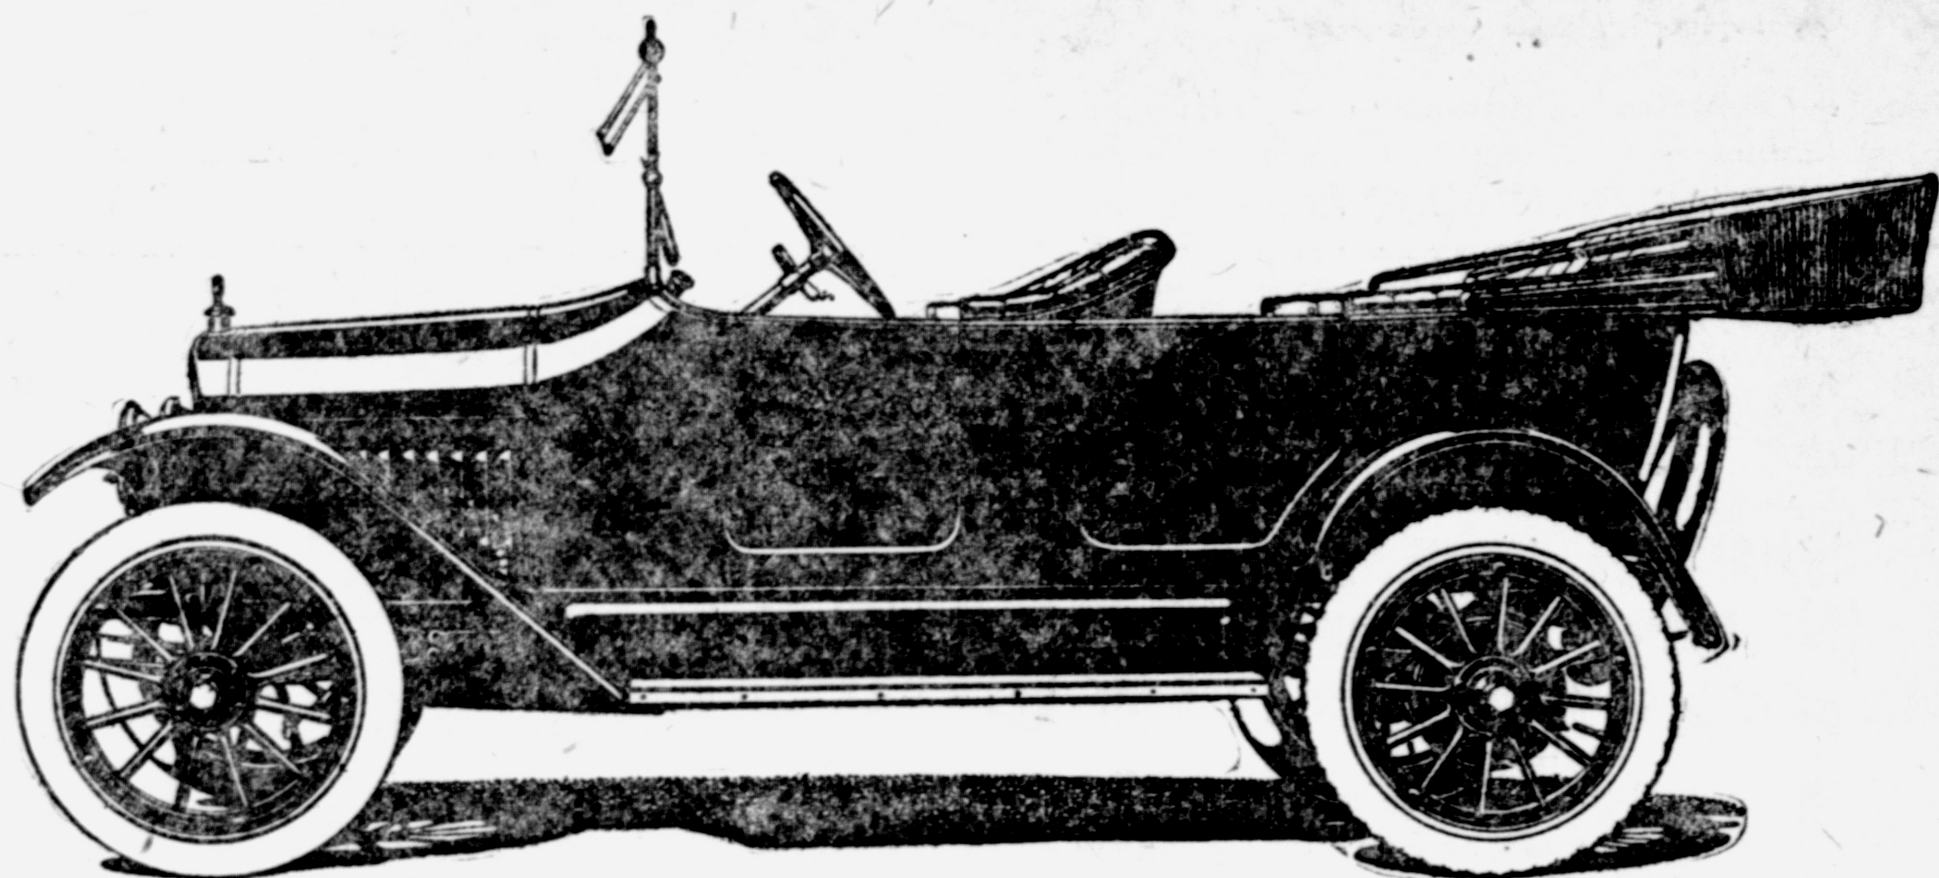

First Operation Friday
Hill's death followed an operation upon his buttock and thigh to relieve serious inflammation caused by a carbuncle. The first operation was performed Friday. Efforts to keep the first operation secret was successful until today, when it became known that a much more serious operation than reported had been performed Saturday.

Six physicians attended Hill. They were Dr. Herman M. Biggs, former health commissioner of New York; Dr. William Mayo and Dr. Charles Mayo, who have attended European nobility, and are famed for their sanitarium at Rochester, Minn.; two other surgeons from the Mayo institute and Dr. J. S. Gillfillan, St. Paul, the Hill family physician.

Straightened Business Matters
Business conferences were held with Hill on his death-bed. Apparently realizing his condition, Hill on Sunday called several railroad officials and told them of the disposition he wanted made of several pending railroad matters. When they were gone, he demanded that two bank officers come. Another conference was held.

Home Life Simple
Hill and his family have for years been sheltered from the curiosity of the reading public. It has been known.

Why You Should Own a Maxwell

Comfort

First, because it is a comfortable riding car. Plenty of room for five people; deep, soft cushions; springs made of the best spring steel, scientifically heat-treated, accurately suspended and balanced. You will always be comfortable in a Maxwell.

Appearance

Second, because the Maxwell is a trim, smart, good-looking car.

Many makers of heavy, high priced cars, as you know, have copied the general lines, the shape of the body and hood of the Maxwell. This is more of a compliment than an infringement.

Service

Third, because the Maxwell, being a product of thirteen years evolution, is so designed and manufactured that it gives unfailing, consistent and and satisfying service to thousands of owners.

Maxwell cars are made of the best materials that money and brains can buy—and they are made right. You can get out of any car only what is put into it.

Low First-Cost

Fourth, because you get everything in a Maxwell that you can get in any car and you get it for less money.

The answer to this is that the Maxwell is a light car and it is built in enormous quantities. The Maxwell Co. is one of the three largest producers of high grade motor cars in the world.

Low After-Cost

Fifth, because the Maxwell will give you more miles per dollar than any car built.

We say this without hesitation or doubt. It is our honest belief and we are willing to prove it by Maxwell owners, by comparison with any other car or by any other way you suggest or prefer.

The Maxwell will please you. We know it will. Let us arrange for a demonstration and we'll take the responsibility of satisfying you completely.

MAXWELL CARS IN HAZARDOUS CLIMB

Time and again Maxwell cars have demonstrated their superior powers as hill climbers, but the work of three stock touring cars in Mauritius, an island in the middle of the Indian ocean, is the most gratifying performance of its kind to be recorded.

News of the latest Maxwell feat, in which a trio of touring cars climbed the hazardous paths of Mount Chamarel, has just been received by the export department at Detroit. At the time the Maxwells successfully made the climb, two other cars of American make attempted the difficult ascent and both were stalled. One of these cars was a twenty horsepower touring car and it was forced to abandon the climb when one-quarter of the way up. The other was a forty horsepower seven-passenger car and it failed to negotiate half the distance.

A Difficult Climb
The following brief description of the mountain and its roads will give some conception of the difficulties that had to be overcome. Mount Chamarel rises from a flat plain a few feet above the sea level to an altitude of 1,200 feet. The road zigzags in a series of sharp curves at angles of about 38 degrees.

The car attempting the climb has before it the difficulty of getting up speed after slowing down to a foot pace to negotiate the curves, which have to be taken with the utmost care for the precipice is always at one side of the car.

In spite of these difficulties, the Maxwells used their second speed and occasionally their third speed in the straight stretches and their first speed only in the curves. The three Maxwells topped the mountain with no apparent difficulty and journeyed down the other side in safety.

A Unique Sight
The performance of these Maxwells is all the more remarkable in view of the fact that heavy rains had fallen during the week preceding the trial, and during the run it rained so hard that water was running down the road.

Mount Chamarel is an object of wonder for all tourists. It has been a source of interest because it offers the unique spectacle of earth of no less than seventy-two distinct and separate colors on a small space of two acres of ground. This spot forms a series of mounds a few feet high, long and narrow and bellowing one after another with startling regularity.

From a short distance, the various colors are easily discernible one from the other and the seventy-two colors may easily be pointed out. The greatest peculiarity of these mounds is that they can be leveled and the earth mixed so as to form a uniform color. A few weeks later they will have formed again and the earth will resume its primitive colors. Scientists have never been able to account for this phenomenon. The colors are attributed by some geologists to ferruginous exhalations from the earth, but this does not explain why the earth will not remain level.

ROOSEVELT BOOM OPENED IN CHICAGO

CHICAGO, May 29.—The Roosevelt republican boom was brought officially to Chicago Saturday when headquarters to promote the colonel's candidacy before the G. O. P. convention were opened at the Congress hotel.

Lawrence Graham and Herbert L. Saterlee, son-in-law of the late John P. Morgan, and Assistant Secretary of the Navy in Roosevelt's administration, were the harbingers who came to stir up enthusiasm for the colonel.

Although it is not known yet whether Colonel Roosevelt will present himself at the convention it was announced Saturday that Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., will be the guest of J. Ogden Armour, the packer, during the convention.

BANKS IN STATE SHOW GROWTH AS PROSPERITY INDEX

MADISON, Wis., May 29.—(Special.)—A review of the financial and industrial conditions for the years 1913, 1914 and 1915 in Wisconsin, as reflected in bank statements for these years, reveals that fact that giant strides have been taken by state and national banks, and, incidentally, the people of the state.

The total banking power of 1913 of 132 national banks, 648 state banks, 5 mutual savings banks, and 14 trust companies, doing business under the law, was $427,483,373.22. In 1914 the aggregate banking power of the state was $425,044,856.20, an increase of $16,021,388.89. In 1915 the total banking power was $470,177,078.81, an increase of $26,762,220.61, whereas the last abstract issued by the state banking department for the close of business May 1, which consists of 697 state banks, 4 mutual savings banks and 15 trust companies, was $497,414,015.84, which is an increase of $27,236,937, in the banking power of the state banks, and which is in excess of the increase of the total banking power for 1915 with the national banks included.

"The reason for the wholesome growth of our banking institutions is the tremendous increase of our exports," said Commissioner A. E. Kuolt today, in commenting on the situation. "Coupled with this healthy condition of our export trade, there has been a restoration of confidence which had been weakened in 1913 and 1914 by the change in our national administration, whose policy was yet to be known. There has been a constant and steady growth in deposits and a considerable freedom on the part of banks to loan money has been manifested in this state which amply proves that the heretofore stringency in the money market has been relieved, I feel that this growth will continue."

BRITAIN TO YIELD IN MAIL SEIZURES CAPITAL BELIEVES

WASHINGTON, May 29.—Early—and favorable—response to the American mail seizures protest against England and France is confidently expected by the administration. Intimation today from the state department men was that advance discussions between Ambassador Spring-Rice and the department had given the impression England intends to comply with the American demands.

This was the more evident from the fact the United States did not stipulate exact changes that must be made but instead demanded only the generality—a radical change—in the allies' policy. England knows, however, what terms the United States exacts, and as Sir Cecil has endeavored to head off the note it is presumed he has outlined concessions England is willing to make.

North Oxford, Mass.—"I had lost three children and I was all run down and so weak I could not sleep at night. My eyesight would leave me and everything I ate upset my stomach. I was very nervous and if I would start to sweep I would have to stop and lie down before I could finish. I was looking over the paper one day and read of a woman who felt as I did and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, so I took it too. Now I am proud to tell you I am feeling fine and have given birth to a boy baby. He is my 'Pinkham' baby. I keep a bottle of Compound in my house always."

Daddy's Bedtime Story—What Happened To the Lonely Sugar Pig.

"I'm Lonely, Too," Said the Hungry Mouse.

ONCE upon a time there was a sugar pig who had passed the best of his life on the very tiptop of a little boy's Christmas tree," said daddy when the children shouted for a story. "He was made of barley sugar and had raisin eyes, but when Christmas joys passed and all the gay balls and popcorn strings and wax candles had been packed away in silver paper for next year the sugar pig was still left hanging in the tiptop of the tree, because the little boy's mamma was not tall enough to reach him. One day her cook came into the room, seized the tree and, with the sugar pig still a-sitting on it, carried it right off to the cellar. But before the garbage man came to cart it away the sugar pig managed to pull himself off and wiggle into a dark, dusty corner.

"One day he felt a sharp pain in his left leg and yelled, 'Who's hurting me?' 'It's only I—Mr. Mouse,' said a small, quavering voice. 'I am very hungry, so I took the liberty to nibble your leg. I do hope you don't mind. You looked so forlorn I thought you were dead. Who are you, anyway?' 'I am a lonely sugar pig, and I hoped to be your friend till you tried to eat me.' 'I'm lonely, too,' said the hungry mouse, 'and if you will come home with me and be my servant I won't eat you. We might even be friends.' So tears of joy ran down the sugar pig's face, almost washing off his snub nose, and home with Mr. Mouse he ran, where he lived for about a week in a snug, dry hole. But soon he got very restless and longed to see more of the sunlight. So he said to his comrade: 'You have been very kind to live with, but I crave a larger life. So goodbye to you!' And off he waddled till he came to the edge of a well, where sat a huge green frog. 'A pleasant day, sir,' the sugar pig remarked to the huge green frog. 'Can you tell me the best hotel near, where I can put up for the night?' The frog looked him all over and rather liked him. 'I'd be pleased to have you spend the night with me, sir,' he assured the sugar pig. Delighted with this attention, the sugar pig joined arms with the huge green frog without even asking him where his home was. The frog gave a leap, thinking everybody liked water, and landed kerplunk right in the well. 'Isn't it delightfully clean and cool here?' he asked the sugar pig. Getting no answer, he looked around, and nothing was left of the poor sugar pig but his raisin eyes, which floated around a minute and then sank to the bottom of the well," daddy finished.

"I love that story, daddy," cried Evelyn. "Tell it again?" But daddy just smiled and kissed her.

THE BASIS OF PEACE WITH HONOR

President Wilson's view of the terms upon which peace may be concluded sounds again the humanist note so often heard during the present administration. It embodies the political doctrine that national privileges, no more than individual privileges, are properly to be defined by force and power.

This doctrine, this creed of simplicity and humanity, is not original with the president. It is the theory that we have subconsciously accepted as the American idea. But that subconscious acceptance has been born of little knowledge. In actuality the United States has played the game of welt-politik pretty much according to the old world rules. Not wholly so—isolated flashes of the popular American spirit aided in the creation of the Monroe Doctrine, in the redemption of Cuba. But even the preponderantly unselfish deeds sprang from motives not unmixed with self-interest. Over against them stand the Philippines and the canal zone, the latter confessedly prize of the mailed fist. However, as a people we have not approved of our acts of predatory diplomacy.

What Woodrow Wilson has done for the American doctrine of international justice was to state it in a clear voice. It had been more a disposition than a conviction. It has fallen short of coherence and formulation in our relations with the world. To call it a new doctrine is true only insofar as its presentation to our neighbors is concerned. It is indeed new to the world of international politics.

Wise men here and abroad have said that America, the beneficiary of Europe's travail, cannot bring peace to the world empty-handed. Our fat prosperity, though it come by ministry to their necessities, has won us no confidence from our battered neighbors over-seas. They will not accept the United States simply as go-between. Unless we come with something constructive to offer, they are not inclined kindly toward our mediation. This creed of humanity is the president's answer. It is America's constructive offering.

Whether the American doctrine expressed by President Wilson will be considered by the belligerents as opening new ground upon which they may meet to make terms depends greatly upon the extent to which they have learned the lesson of the war. It has lasted two weary years. The losses are appalling. The net gain to any nation is infinitesimal. Against this background, painting so blackly the futility of ambitions of conquest, shines the serene picture of world-harmony born of the American idea. Is there among the fighters the prophetic vision to grasp the force of the contrast? If it be so, the world has come a step further and the war has not been wholly in vain.

HAS JUSTICE HUGHES HIS JENNINGS BRYAN?

Mr. Justice Hughes is threatened with the support of the reactionary minority of Wisconsin's delegation to the republican national convention—"if his position on national questions is satisfactory". Perhaps it is one step in the process of taking Mr. Hughes apart if we may use a little "rough stuff".

The situation recalls that in the Baltimore convention of 1912, when the Tammany delegation hung itself as a millstone around Woodrow Wilson's neck. It will be remembered that Mr. Bryan arose and declared Dr. Wilson would not accept the nomination unless he secured enough votes to nominate, exclusive of the Tammany vote. Thus Woodrow Wilson was nominated without depending upon votes the acceptance of which would have turned thousands from him at the polls.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

We again ask the ever-interested public to follow us while we "point with pride" to a little sales stunt that was pulled by Mr. C. A. Begun, proprietor of the Rexall Drug Store.

The "One Cent Sale" is a semi-annual event in most of the stores served by the United Drug Co., and Mr. Begun placed the entire responsibility of the sale with the advertising department of the TRIBUNE.

In spite of the inclement weather that prevailed during the three days of the sale, practically every article advertised was sold. Over 1,000 pounds of coffee, 780 cans of talcum powder, 525 tubes of tooth paste, 595 pound boxes of candy and 450 boxes of writing paper are a few of the entries in the sales book for the three days. With good weather, there would not have been enough to go around, and as it was many items were sold out the second day.

Another little jolt for the fellow who says that advertising does not pay.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

It Pays to Advertise
"Will you allow me to ask you a question?" interrupted a man in the audience.
"Certainly sir," said the lecturer.
"You have given us a lot of figures about immigration, increase of wealth, the growth of trusts and all that," said the man. "Let's see what you know about figures yourself. How do you find the greatest common divisor?"
Slowly the great orator took a glass of water. Then he pointed his finger straight at the questioner. Lightning flashed from his eyes and he replied in a voice that made the gas jets quiver, "Advertise for it, you ignoramus!"
The audience cheered and yelled and stamped, but the wretched man who had asked the question crawled out of the hall a total wreck.

He Did His Best
The manager of the big Australian sheep ranch engaged a discharged sailor to do farm work. He was put in charge of a large flock of sheep.
"Now, all you've got to do," explained the manager, "is to keep them on the run."
A run is a large stretch of bushland inclosed by a fence and sheep have many ingenious methods of escaping from their own to neighboring runs and so getting mixed up with other flocks.
At the end of a couple of hours the manager rode up again—the air was thick with dust as if a thousand head of cattle had passed by.
At last he distinguished the form of his new shepherd—a collapsed heap prone upon the ground. Surrounding him were the sheep, a pitiful, huddled mass, bleating plaintively with considerably more than a week's condition lost.
"What the dickens have you been doing to those sheep?" shrieked the almost frantic manager.
The ex-sailor managed to gasp out: "Well, sir, I've done my best. You told me to keep them on the run and so I hunted them and down and round—and now—I'm just dead beat myself."

Servants in India
A traveler, recently returned from India, was giving his impressions.
"What a country it is!" he exclaimed. "There everybody keeps dozens of servants. I had four whose business was to look after my pipe. One brought it to me, another filled it, a third lighted it for me—"
"And the fourth?"
"The fourth smoked it for me. Tobacco never agreed with me."

Clever
It was just after the banquet, and toasts were the order. The toastmaster arose to introduce a prominent, elderly speaker and said:
"Gentlemen, you have just been giving your attention to a turkey stuffed with sage, now you will please give your attention to a sage stuffed with turkey."

DAILY

KANSAS CITY

Now that Kansas City has a new union station, it is safe to talk about the old one. Kansas City was never proud of the old station, as the visitor found out when he tried to talk about it. There is no doubt that it lacked somewhat in beauty and convenience, and that the hundreds of thousands of people who never saw more of the city as they passed long enough to change trains on their way across the continent may have carried away a mistaken impression. But there was something impressive about the old station for all that, so that a few who knew it well will remember it kindly.

It gave the traveler an intimate glimpse into the might of those monsters of the rails, the modern locomotives. Nowhere else was he permitted to wander among them where they congregated in such numbers. In the big station of today the voyager is tenderly conducted to his Pullman along a cement sidewalk beneath a roofed vault like that of a cathedral. After he is safely locked in, an engine comes along and takes him away. In the old Kansas City station he was turned loose to caper among a multitude of snoring, fire-eating engines. Their clangor deafened his ears, their great wheels towered over their head, their escaping steam veiled him from view. It was as interesting as a trip into a menagerie—one of the few adventures left in up-to-date traveling.

In Kansas City the eastern tourist comes for the first time to hand-grips with the west. There are people along the Atlantic coast who speak of going west when they visit Cincinnati, but the real west begins in Kansas City. The stock-yards are largely responsible. Thousands of western stock-raisers make an annual trip "east" to Kansas City. The signs of the west are legion. The very currency changes. A paper dollar is a curiosity; the silver "cart-wheel" which the east never uses becomes a feature of the scenery and a burden in the pocket. The penny is conspicuous by its absence. Here, too, you first meet the Mexican section-hand who covers the face of the southwest, and the cowboy hat reaches the eastern limit of its range. There are subtler signs than these of a new land. The breeziness, the frankness, the approachability of the people all speak of the great open spaces.

An American Romance

Copyright 1915—The Robbs-Merrill Company

Virgil seemed to be wondering and yet I knew he was bewildered by the closeness of her, her airs, at once barbaric and quaintly of an exquisite and vanished breeding, touched with the pertness of today. For she could show all of these at times; I was more astonished, as I noted her evening's transformation. She wore her gown—the simple rich gown of the Comus ball imported by that New Orleans aunt—with an odd and merry nonchalance in that rough room in an endeavor to make the other girls feel at ease.

But Virgil seemed directly indifferent to her chatter. Presently he faced her seriously.

"I been wonderin' why you brought me over here tonight?"

She started; her eyes had been on the wall of forest behind the house; a shimmer of moonlight fell through upon the pools, but it seemed to take the pink of dawn. Within the wide hall the droning of dances, and the luckless sto' clerk from La Fourche who tried to dilate upon the tango to the islanders, got only wondering stares. The floor shook with the waiters' movements, but out here in the cool dark the rough edges were taken from the festivities. I was all but asleep with the peace of Laure's isle; one could just make out that she was leaning to Virgil from the gallery.

"I thought, perhaps, m'sieu, as we are such excellent enemies, we should be better acquainted."

"Ah," I mused, "so, at last he is to be the next one? Well, you can not win Virgil from his own job—personal and specified."

The Texan was answering calmly; if he had ever loved the girl, he held himself aloof from it now. "Enemies? I hate to call it that. Only, I never had the chance to be anything else—it was my game, you see."
"And mine," she murmured, "was just to hate you, so. Only—one wonders—one can not have exactly as one wishes, after all."
"No," she might have known how vain her coquetry was from his voice; perhaps she did. At least she sighed, and drew herself up to a small heap in the corner. He went on steadily: "One of these days you and Papa Prosper will be sorry you did not accept the forty thousand—the company offered you three years ago for a quit-claim."

"And cut up our island?"
"Five years more," Virgil retorted irreverently, "this timber will be out of the swamp and all your prairie will be raising early stuff for the Chicago markets. Isle Bonne'll be the first good to the world it ever was. But you—you little thing. The world will be a pretty rough place for you when you have to get out in it. It isn't flowers and honey bees; and all you know here of woods and watch won't be any manner of use to you then. That's why I'm sorry."

"You are sorry, m'sieu?"

"Yes."
"Ah, that is good! My little saint, in there upon the wall—some-time I ask her a little prayer for to change your heart." I heard him stir; he was not used to that—to women and the softness of the night, to pretty speeches and allurements. Clell would have met her with banter or with a sentiment of her own. But Virgil—well, I thought of Mary and the twelve years the man waited for her stubbornly before he gave her up. If there was love in him, it was like the strength in him, wrought of the beaten metal of defeat. Laure might play with him, but she had best let his sleeping soul lie. If it slept.

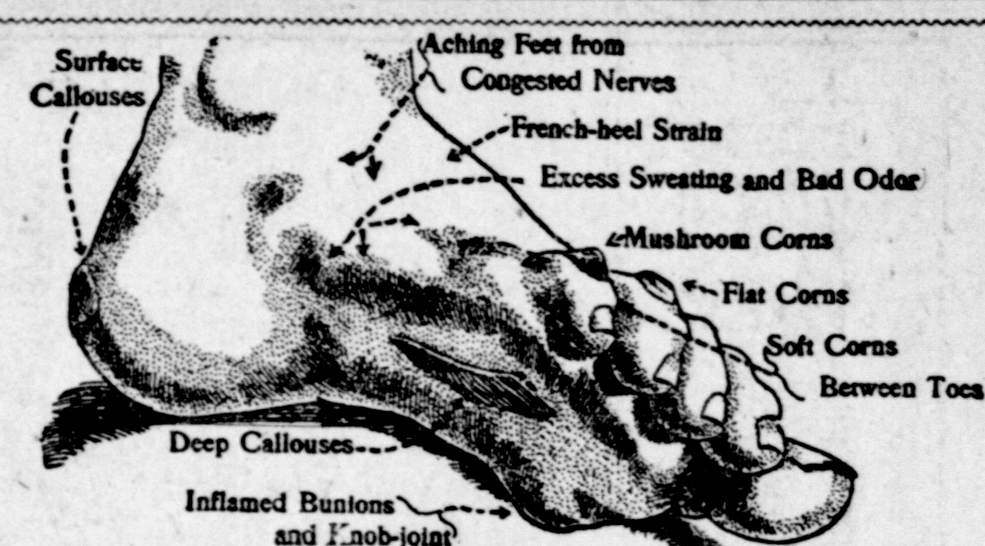

"You little thing!" he muttered suddenly. "They get no call to let you stay in all this foolishness. They fill you with dreams, they never let you come face to face with things. If they did you wouldn't fight me or my job yonded. Things would have been different."

I could not catch her low answer. I wondered what would have been different with him or with her. What stubborn triumph had he planned?

"Well," I mused, "Bother them all. I have done my duty even as my host said it. I proposed to the minx—what more can the old buzz-saw of a baron desire? As for the rest of it, thank God, I am forty-six. Youth is a manifest disaster, and the sooner done the better."
I opened my eyes again and flicked a mosquito from the tip of my ear. They were talking more softly; and within the store the droning music and the shuffle of feet went on. Out in the moonlight offing a fisher was singing on his lugger and his furnace fire of charcoal made a red spot in the night. Beyond him the giant gars leaped among the floating lilies, and beyond that was the starry dusk. But my eyes wandered sleepily to the left where was the impenetrable cypress jungle. A pink bloom was against or behind it. And while I watched this, some one came along the gallery and leaned to me. It was Clell, and he motioned to the forest.

"The marsh is burning. Big Jim says it must be beyond the canal, and the wind is right to bring it in. Where's Williams?"
"There," I motioned to them. But Clell did not go on. Never yet had he directly addressed his superior save at their work, and then coolly,

NEWS NOTES from MOVIELAND
- BY DAISY DEAN -

Annette Kellerman's filmplay made in Jamaica is to be released early in June. This is the play that was eight months in the making and is said to have cost William Fox $1,000,000.

Rome is the scene in the prologue of this fantasy. A little girl has a canary she idolizes. She releases her bird that it may join a sparrow in the yard. The sparrow is killed, and the heart broken canary flies out to sea and dies on the waves.

The little girl dies of grief.

Sunrise on the beach.

Mermaids are swimming out from the shore, taking with them a baby mermaid, which is a spirit form of the little girl who died.

The sparrow, transfigured by a fairy, becomes a youth. The canary becomes a maid. This maid is Annette Kellerman.

That starts the story, which later becomes a spectacle full of battle scenes, in which crowds take part.

Bessie Barriscale

In "Sorrow of Love"

Bessie Barriscale is to be seen in "The Sorrow of Love," a picture which will serve to introduce several radical departures in production. Miss Barriscale plays the role of a sister in a convent, where she is known as "The Lily." The plot required Italian locale, and revolves about the efforts of the sister to learn the ways of the world.

The cameraman in charge of filming this picture worked out a new lighting device which is used in "The Sorrow of Love" for the first time. The device makes possible realistic effects with candle, lamp, or the sun. In the case of using a candle, the flame lights only the face of the person who is carrying it, and not the entire setting.

Supporting Miss Barriscale in this subject in the leading role is William Desmond, and other members of the cast are Ora Carew, Marshall Mayall and Wedgwood Nowell.

For the first time in five years Lionel Barrymore, who has been in pictures for several years and been photographed thousands of times, sat for a regular photograph, at the Rolfe-Metro studio. Says Mr. Barrymore, nothing more than was needed.

"Tell him," Clell muttered, "the dynamite boat is in the main ditch not thirty yards from the dredge—and in the fire-line as that wind holds."

Virgil must have heard him. I knew his chair had dropped swiftly. He was on his feet and by us, staring about the end of the gallery where now the south was a glow beyond the forest wall.

"Mangy and Al are asleep in the quarter-boat, too." He lifted a hand to test the breeze. "You can't tell how it's blowin' here." He turned his quick glance in the hall. And there I saw the Baron de Vedrines' vast bulk in the door, and he was smiling. Virgil shot a look at me. Then he jumped nearer with clenched hands.

For an instant I thought he would seize the old fellow by the neck. The baron was bowing. The play was obvious enough from his sardonic airs. Williams turned, checking his words, saw Laure beyond in the semi-darkness, and came past to her. He stopped full before her and spoke quietly.

"You asked me here tonight, you showed me the first real kindness in all the years I been here. And I see now—I see why you had me sit there"—he pointed to the gallery corner—"my back to the woods and the prairie! beyond—the prairie dry as tinder and my dredge in it."

"M'sieu?" She was looking wonderingly at him.

"You know I reckon that there are two men sleepin' on it, and four tons of dynamite and black powder in the ditch near 'em? Did you?"

The baron was bowing again with profound courtesy. The other guests were straying out in wonderment. The music had ceased. The Texan fingered his white hat before Laure and spoke on quietly.

"Killin' two men—you didn't think of that, did you?"

The motor on the launch broke out to whirling as Big Jim got the boat turned. The Texan was moving past me, when Laure came.

"M'sieu, you did not think—you can not think—"

"I know," he answered. "They did it—the baron's niggers. But you—"

She did not answer. The baron was rubbing his hands. The half world to the south was growing brighter. The Texan looked resolutely at her. "Did you? Say no—and I'll believe you."

She could not. She fled past him, suddenly to the end of the wharf;

Harem scene in Kellerman picture

more: "There is neither excuse nor sense in a man having his photograph taken," in which sentiment he is not shared by Mr. Bushman.

Wisdom from Sis Hopkins: "Pa says moving pitchers is popular with henpecked men cause they like to get a chance to laff at a woman without being talked to death."

Mary Miles Minter has become a suffragist. She hopes that when she is twenty-one, six years hence, she will be allowed to vote.

VERSE and REVERSE

The New Moon

O, gracious lady moon, I pray,
But pause a moment on your way.
To view the fields of tender wheat,
Whose ripening will be complete.
When you again are outward bound,
Upon your journey's ceaseless round.

And who shall harvest these fair fields,
That blessed night protects and shields?

O, lovers 'neath the moon of May,
Is yours the task of June's fair day,
Or doth there lurk in shadows near,
The thing that palsies strength with fear?

O, lovers kissing 'neath the moon
'Twere made to doubt the faith of June.

The wheat will ripen in the sun,
The moon its little course will run,
Why darken all the moonlit May,
Though death lurk but a month away.

—Frank Fair.

she was reaching her hands to Clell in the launch, when Virgil brushed grimly past her into it. He did not look at her again.

"Redfield, are you goin' in with me—to drag that dynamite away from the machine. There's a chance—just one chance."

"Yes," Clell retorted, "I'm going." They crouched low in the boat as it shot out and around the gleaming shell point of Isle Bonne to the lake. "Nine miles," I heard the boss mutter, and he held a lantern to his watch. "Nine miles, and that ditch will be a pit of fire every foot from the lake boom."

Then they disappeared; and I stood listening to the faint beat of the motor, looking at the red sky beyond the cypress wall. The swamper on Prosper's gallerie were listening curiously. In the splotch of light at the door stood the baron.

"Ah, my friend," he said, "it is not yet twelve—compose yourselves. The gentlemen have gone, but the night is young."

Laure and myself were left on the end of the wharf. "See here," I demanded. "The old devil knows; I wondered why this affair was got up—and we were asked. If that dead burns, Williams loses his coat—and he's done for. You know—"

DOUBLE TRACKING TO SOUTH AGAIN USED BY THE "Q"

For the first time since the wash-out several weeks ago near Ferryville demoralized traffic on the Burlington, the double tracking was put into service Saturday afternoon. Trains are being run regularly over the track, which has undergone a thorough reworking.

That the road has been greatly benefited by the washout is the opinion of railroad men. It is held that the complete saturation of the ballast has served to "set" the bed. For several weeks since the wash-out, in which a heavy passenger locomotive toppled into the river, the old tracks to the west of the new double tracking near Ferryville were used. Later, use of one of the tracks of the new section was possible.

SOCIETY

PRE-NUPITAL EVENTS

Miss Edith Derr entertained at a one o'clock luncheon today in honor of Miss Eileen Burns at which covers were laid for twenty-four. An interesting feature of the occasion was the announcement of the engagement of the hostess to Lloyd Lamb, which came as a surprise to many of the guests and elicited hearty good wishes. The rooms were elaborately decorated with bridal wreath and gladioli, pink being the motive color.

Miss Gertrude Sisson was hostess at a charming party Saturday afternoon, complimentary to Miss Eileen Burns, whose wedding day is set for June the 20th. The affair was in the nature of a miscellaneous shower and the bride-elect was the recipient of many beautiful gifts. Luncheon was served in the dining porch, the table being centered with spirea and a basket of lilies and snapdragons marking the place of the honor guest. The front porch was decked with lilacs and appleblossoms. In the party were the Misses Burns, Loretta and Camilla Mac-Willie, Helen Gallagher, Edna Shirley, Meta Mueller, Mary White, Gertrude Ives, Edith Derr and Clara Fox and Mrs. Frank Schwalbe, Jr.

Mrs. G. Buel delightfully entertained a party of friends Friday evening at her home, 1013 South Sixth street, at a linen shower in honor of Miss Minnie Reichgelt, another of La Crosse's June brides. Those present were the Misses Minnie Swords, Elsie Keller, Louise Ratz and Agnes Delphenich and Mrs. H. Grace. The evening was pleasantly spent in music and a delicious lunch was served.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene H. Derr announce the engagement of their daughter, Edith Evelyn, to Lloyd Lamb, son of Mr. J. I. Lamb.

Announcements

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of the First Methodist church will meet on Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. M. Heyerdahl, 302 North Eighth street.

Owing to the fact that Thursday, June first, is a holy day, the meeting of the Catholic Women's league, scheduled for that day, has been postponed until the following Thursday, June the eighth.

LEAGUE SAYS "THANK YOU"

The Catholic Women's league has issued the following statement expressing their appreciation of the assistance given them in the production of the Wisconsin pageant of last Friday:

"The Catholic Women's league wishes to express their appreciation of the aid lent them by the pastors of the various parishes, the Sisters, the newspapers and businessmen, choirs and choir directors, accompanists, those normal students who trained the children, those who loaned their automobiles, and all who took an active part in Friday evening's performance of 'Wisconsin Then and Now.'"

PHYSICAL ED'S HAVE OUTING

The members and faculty of the Physical Education department of the State Normal school enjoyed an outing at Eagle Bluff on Thursday of last week. The trip was made in the Otto launch, approximately sixty-five students and teachers being present. The party made their headquarters at the Hurlen cottage, where both dinner and supper were served. In the afternoon were held the Class Day exercises of the department.

SURPRISE PARTY

Mrs. Fred Kabat was pleasantly surprised at her home, 628 Tyler street, Friday afternoon by a party of relatives and friends in honor of her birthday anniversary. The hostess received many beautiful and useful gifts. Those present were the Mesdames J. Kabat, W. Roubik, F. Poley, Gus Ott, Ed Young, F. Bender and H. Gundlach and Miss Helen Kabat.

FAMILY DINNER AT Y. W.

A "family dinner" will be served at the Y. W. C. A. at 12 o'clock tomorrow noon. There will be no evening meal served at the association.

LUNCHEONS

Mrs. Frank E. Davis, 1102 State street, was hostess at two charming luncheons last week, at each of which covers were laid for eight. The first one was on Thursday and was in honor of Mrs. Mary Anderson King, of Bryn Mawr, and the second on Saturday complimentary to Mrs. Mable West Loos of Napoleon, O. An attractive basket of ferns and roses centered the table.

ATTEND COLLEGE DOINGS

The Misses Verena Otten and Esther Tuttle and Earl Lockman are at Waukesha to attend the entertainment which annually the fraternities of Carroll college tender the girls of the school. They will return tomorrow.

GOOD SAMARITANS

The Good Samaritans will meet at the La Crosse Home for Women and Children, corner of Eleventh and Ferry streets, tomorrow afternoon. The members are requested to come directly to the home as soon as possible after the noon hour and the time will be utilized in making comforters and doing other work needed at the institution.

Social Briefs

A son, Chester, Junior, was born at the La Crosse hospital this morning to Mr. and Mrs. Chester J. Bangsberg, of Viroqua. Mrs. Bangsberg was Miss Irene Snyder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Snyder, 1508 Wood street.

Mrs. Charles Tarbox of Minneapolis, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Holcomb, 909 Main street.

Busy Week Confronts Clubwomen in New York

NEW YORK, May 29.—Another busy week is before the clubwomen's delegates at the Biennial. Every minute is provided for, from now until Friday, when the delegates will be homeward bound. The most general topic of the various state circles is the election of a new president of the General Federation. Mrs. Samuel B. Sneath, who comes from Ohio and Louisiana, has made a favorable impression during her campaign for the office, to succeed Mrs. Percy V. Pennybacker of Texas. Mrs. Sneath is a bank official in New Orleans, and maintains her old home in Tiffin, O. Her campaign manager is Miss Anna B. Johnson of Springfield, O. Mrs. Pennybacker has said that she will leave office with a feeling of relief, for the extensive traveling and arduous labors of the national president make the office a trying one.

A Few Things Well Done

MILWAUKEE, Wis., May 29.—"Future medical training depends on learning a few things well," said Dr. Sarah Hobson, of Chicago, in a recent address before the Wisconsin Homeopathic society. "The great necessity of a student is that he or she read widely, but with discrimination, and thereby learn the law of similars. The duty of a physician is to relieve the suffering and teach patients how to keep well."

Anne Martin Will Head Women's Party

CHICAGO, May 29.—Miss Anne Martin of Reno, Nev., is slated to head the new women's party which will be organized by the congressional union for woman's suffrage, June 5, 6 and 7, it was said here today.

Whether Miss Martin will be launched as a presidential candidate, or merely made chairman of the party, could not be learned.

"FEAST OF LIFE"
IN TRAGIC FILM

One of the biggest feature motion pictures of the year will be shown on the screen at the Bijou theater Tuesday and Wednesday, when the World Film production, "The Feast of Life," with Clara Kimball Young, Paul Capellani and Boris Kenyon will be the feature of the day's bill. It is the tragic story of Aurora Fernandez, a poor but beautiful Cuban girl, who is persuaded against her will to marry Don Armada, a wealthy Cuban, while she loves Pedro, a young fisherman, who lives with his uncle, Father Ventura, and his sister, Celidia, who has been secretly stealing to Don Armada's villa, but is cast off by him on his engagement to Aurora.

THE "ENDLESS CHAIN"
DANGER OF CATARRH

S. S. S. the Proper Safeguard

Catarrh is the offspring of "colds." It is a "cold" in its chronic form. The air is filled with bacteria, which is taken into the mouth and nose through the process of breathing. When the body is in a healthy condition no harm results. But with our modern methods of indoor living and sedentary occupations, the mucous membranes are usually not able to "throw off" this harmful bacteria, making catarrh a very common ailment. These germs breed and multiply, causing inflammation, the blood rushing to the membranes to fight off the bacilli. When the blood is in a vigorous condition its "defensive" efforts are successful. Otherwise the cold "hangs on"—turns into catarrh. Catarrh is a chronic inflammation of the mucous membranes. Mucous membranes are the lining on all the internal cavities of the body. Get that—ALL cavities! There is the "endless" element of danger. If allowed to run on catarrh will affect not only the nose, but the throat and ear, making you liable to deafness, pulmonary and other troubles. Local applications are useless. The only correct way to treat this dread disease is to purify the blood. The surest way to purify the blood is to take S. S. S., which has been the standard blood medicine for fifty years. S. S. S. is a purely vegetable compound. It will not injure the most delicate stomach. You can get S. S. S. at every reputable drug store. We have an expert Medical Department, which will be glad to give you any special advice you may desire without charge. Write the Swift Specific Company, Dept. 42, Atlanta, Georgia.

ern life on this planet is a battle between man and the insects—and the latter are in every physical respect better fitted to survive. All other forms of life have been subjugated by man so far as he has come in contact with them. Only the insect remains in almost undiminished numbers, and continues to menace the life and well-being of the human race. Grasshoppers descend upon our crops and leave whole states and nations to famine. Several Central American republics are now in a starving condition as a result of these pests. The boll-weevil, creeping southward, threatens the life of a great industry. Moths devour the shade trees of whole cities. Houseflies take thousands of lives by acting as disease carriers, and the mosquito laden with yellow fever and malaria, kills more men than any wild animal that ever inhabited the earth.

Will Bugs Win?

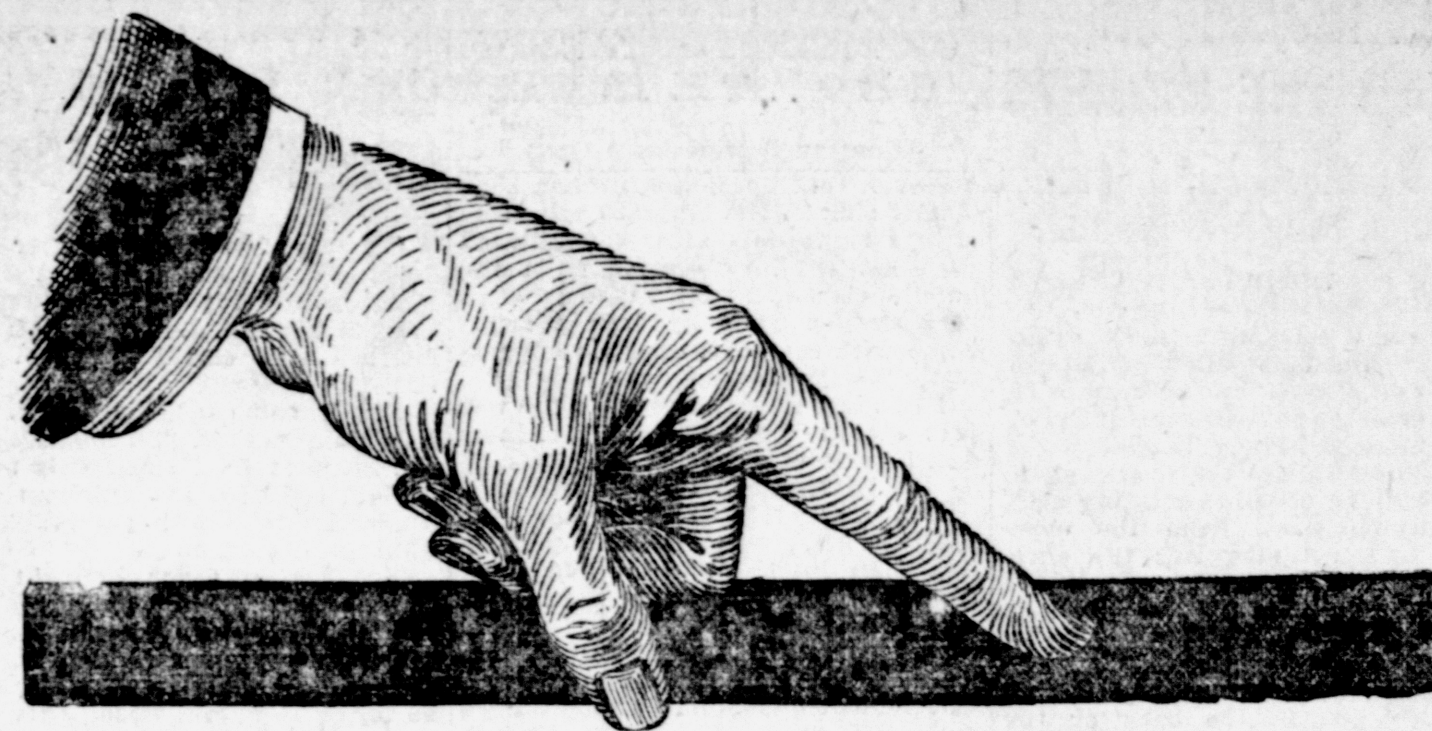

So modern life is in a very real sense a desperate struggle between man and the insects. Some scientists believe that it is the insects who will survive, and that they will own the earth long after every other form of life has perished. Dr. Howard believes that man will ultimately overcome the insects by reason of his superior intelligence; and the valiant battle which his department is waging against the insect enemies of American agriculture is an impressive demonstration of his theory. But whether we are to conquer or not, it is certain that the struggle is really desperate, and it promises to become more so as man extends his dominion over the tropics, which are the most productive part of the earth, and have so far been kept in a state of wilderness largely by the insects who carry death to every intruder.

Now in this struggle for existence, it is evident that our enemies have one great advantage over us in that they live upon the spoils of war, while we do not. A pest of grasshoppers descends upon Kansas, and lays waste the country. The farmers go forth with poison and traps to destroy them. There is heavy loss on both sides. But the grasshoppers live upon the substance of the farmers, while every cent which the farmer spends in destroying the insects is a complete loss. Now just suppose that roasted and salted grasshopper was a staple food with civilized man as it is in North Africa. Corporations would pay the farmers large sums for the grasshopper rights of their lands. The insects would be gathered by the ton in huge machines designed for the purpose, and shipped to all parts of the world. The crops would be saved and the farmers would make a neat royalty to boot.

Look at Europe

This sounds a bit Utopian; yet something very like it is being done in parts of Europe, where the cockchafer is very abundant. Children are there employed to gather the insects which are fed to the pigs. A recent traveler in Germany reports that frequently the peasant children will stop in this work to pull the legs and wings off one of the luckless bugs and chew up his thorax and abdomen with great relish just as a boy employed to pick cherries will flick one now and then. With the young generation thus learning the food value of insects, and with Europe threatened by a shortage of food, there is reason to believe that insects may become a staple before long.

Insects have been used as food by primitive and savage peoples since very early times, and in some instances they have been used by the civilized. Thus Dr. Howard had an excellent precedent for his worm dinner if Aristotle is to be relied upon; for that writer records that Cicada was a favorite food of the most cultured ancient Greeks, both in the larval stage and when fully developed. The white grub is simply the larva of the American Cicada or June bug. This larva is a very rich food consisting largely of a very delicate fat. Most mature insects, on the other hand, consist in an outer casing made of a hard substance called chitin, which contains no nutritive element, and of muscle, which is white, lean and striated and resembles the flesh of lobsters and shrimps. This muscle is the edible part, and analysis would doubtless reveal that it is an excellent product.

Orientals Eat 'Em

The Chinese and Japanese are about the only modern civilized peoples that eat insects. The Chinese are fond of the chrysalis of the silk worm, after the silk has been removed, and also regard as a delicacy a certain species of hawk moth. Locusts are the most widely eaten insects. The Arabs are fond of them, and they are brought to Fez in wagons and loads. In some parts of Japan they are eaten candied. The Australian bushman finds them a delicacy, and so do the Moors. The locust is the common grasshopper. If you should desire to prepare a dish of these succulent insects, here is a recipe which has been tried by time and various races and found good.

Remove the legs and wings from the insects. Boil them for half an hour; then drain, sprinkle with salt, pepper and vinegar, and fry in butter. The result tastes like a very delicate omelette, according to reliable reports.

Ants Not Bad

The Hottentots eat white ants both cooked and raw. The favorite way to prepare them is to roast them over a slow fire, like coffee. In parts of Sweden, according to an old writer, ants are distilled along with grain to make some of the poorer grades of brandy. Both the Hottentots and some African tribes eat lice, gathering a plentiful crop from their own cranial preserves.

Spiders are said to be excellent eating, although too scarce to become popular. Anna Marie Schurman, a woman famous a century ago in Europe, was very fond of them, and would pick them up while walking in her garden, crack the tough outer integument like the shell of a nut, and then eat the contents with relish. Lalande, the famous French astronomer, was also fond of eating spiders. Rosel tells of a German who liked to gather them by the handful and spread them on his bread and butter like jam. He declared that they were an excellent laxative. Humboldt records having seen Indian children in South America pull centipedes eighteen inches long out of the earth and eagerly devour them.

Got Over Under Disguise

Dr. Howard's adventure with the Puree au Worms was not the first time insects have been eaten in this country. When Kansas and Colorado were devastated by grasshoppers in 1874, one of the state entomologists induced the owner of a large restaurant in St. Louis to make a thick soup or bisque out of grasshoppers. This was served under a French name to several hundred diners, and was eaten with apparent pleasure and without unfavorable comment.

Scientists have urged the eating of insects for a long time. Half a century ago an Englishman wrote a book on the subject, and added an appendix containing a number of insectivorous menus, in which were such dishes as wasp grubs fried in the comb, new carrots with wire-worm sauce, stagbeetle larva on toast, and cauliflower garnished with caterpillars.

These things sound all right, perhaps they taste all right; but for some reason they fail to arouse enthusiasm. Prejudice is always stronger than logic, and it will probably take much time and experiment to overcome the prejudice of civilized man against insect food.

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like lumps of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is cloudy, full of sediment, or the bladder is irritable, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

NORTH AND SOUTH STREETS TO GET LIGHTS TONIGHT

North Side and All South of King Street All Arcs Will Be In Service

Street lighting will be resumed in La Crosse tonight in all streets in North La Crosse, and south of King streets in the south side. Probably resumption of the entire system of street lighting will be complete Tuesday.

The arcs for the street lighting arrived here today from Cincinnati, in two special cars. The freight alone was $600. The Wisconsin-Minnesota Light and Power company had orders in for new arcs, but they were not ready for shipment, and fire left Manager Moncrief at his wits' end for facilities.

A search of the country by long-distance telephone finally located some extra arcs, the property of the city of Cincinnati, the officials of which consented to relieve Mr. Moncrief in his company's emergency.

SAGE TEA DANDY TO DARKEN HAIR

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

You can turn gray, faded hair beautifully dark and lustrous almost overnight if you'll get a 50-cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" at any drug store. Millions of bottles of this old famous Sage Tea Recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, are sold annually, says a well-known druggist here, because it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that no one can tell it has been applied.

Those whose hair is turning gray or becoming faded have a surprise waiting them, because after one or two applications the gray hair vanishes and your locks become luxuriantly dark and beautiful.

This is the age of youth. Gray-haired, unattractive folks aren't wanted around, so get busy with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound tonight and you'll be delighted with our dark, handsome hair and your youthful appearance within a few days.

This preparation is a toilet requisite and is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

In Great Allied Loan One of the latest gigantic business deals of Hill's was the mammoth allied loan in 1915. Hill and King Albert of Belgium were warm personal friends.

Rev. Thomas J. Gibbons, vicar-general of the diocese of St. Paul, and Archbishop John Ireland were with Hill when he died, although Hill was not a Catholic.

The Biography A history of the life of James Jerome Hill is a history of the development of the northwest. His was perhaps the most thorough influence in the development of this vast expanse of almost half a continent over which his railroads extend. Fifty years ago today, Hill was a dock clerk in St. Paul—practically penniless. Today his fortune is millions.

He was born near Guelph, Ontario, September 16, 1838. His parents, James and Anne Hill, were plain, hard working Scottish and North of Ireland stock, whose best asset was their ability and willingness to work. This trait they transmitted to their son.

Wanted to Be Surgeon

This hope was blasted by the death of his father when he was 15. He went to work and the actual struggles against the conditions of life in the thirties in Canada, gave him the ruggedness of the pioneer, taught him the doctrine of work and furnished him with the physical vigor that made it possible for him to materialize so easily.

Hill came to St. Paul in July, 1850. Without technical preparation of any sort, he took a job as clerk with a steamship company. He held this job for nine years.

Two years later he married and went into the general fuel and transportation business for himself. He was the first many to bring mineral coal to St. Paul. About the same time he got his first experience in railroad work when he accepted a position as station master on the only railroad entering St. Paul. When he came to St. Paul the railroad system of the northwest ended at Galena, Ill., just 271 miles from St. Paul. Communication with that point was by stage coach in winter and by steamboat on the Mississippi in the summer.

Developed Red River Valley

In 1879 Hill organized the Red River Valley Transportation company, and began the development of the great Red River Valley. Out of this plan grew a syndicate that finally took over the St. Paul and Pacific railroad, out of which grew the Great Northern railroad.

A railroad running from the present site of St. Paul to what is now Minneapolis, a distance of about ten miles, was the foundation upon which the great Hill system of railroads was built. This was the Minnesota & Pacific railroad, which ran between St. Paul and St. Anthony, a city that occupied the present site of Minneapolis. The 1857 panic halted the completion of the road. In 1860 the road went into the hands of the state, who turned it over to Edmund Rice. It went into the hands of the receiver again in 1873, with seven mortgages aggregating $23,000,000 against it. Holland capitalists held the interests, and they desired to unload. George Stephen, now Lord Mount Stephen; Donald A. Smith, afterward Lord Strathcona and Norman W. Kittson bought the defaulted bonds from the Dutch holders, and placed Hill in charge as general manager.

Organize New Road

The three promoters raised much money, and in May, 1879, organized the St. Paul, Minneapolis & Manitoba railroad, with a capital of $15,000,000. The Red River and the wonderful commercial possibilities of Winnipeg were the immediate goal of Hill. But the enormous influx from Minnesota, pushing over its western boundaries into the Dakotas, caused the road to be pushed in that direction as well as toward Winnipeg. Branches and feeders were thrown out. These lines today form the network of lines in Minnesota and the Dakotas.

Great Northern Founded

In 1889 the Great Northern was organized to merge all the branches and feeders that had become too large for the limitations of the Manitoba line. The same year the line, under Hill's direction, was pushed to Puget Sound. The same year, branches of the Hill controlled road nosed into the ore producing country of northern Minnesota. Organization of steamship companies, operating with the Orient, through Seattle, and in conjunction with Hill's transcontinental railroad system was the next step in his building career. In the meantime, the Northern Pacific, a second St. Paul to the coast road, had been put through.

But a Chicago to the coast line was needed and the Hill interests represented by the Great Northern and the Northern Pacific, bought the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy. The Northern Securities company to control the three roads, was formed, but was declared illegal under the Sherman anti-trust law and was dissolved. In 1907 the fourteen railroads operated subsidiary to the Great Northern and operated as a part of the Great Northern system.

Expansion Keynote

Throughout his rugged life, expansion had been Hill's keynote. His faculty of seeing many things well and simultaneously forged him ahead

MR. CARL SCHWARTZ DIES SUDDENLY OF HEART AFFLICTION

Scarcely five minutes after Carl Schwartz had retired last night, members of his family found him dead in his bed. A sudden attack of heart disease ended the aged man's life.

Death came at his home, 1015 Mississippi street, at 9:30 last night. Mr. Schwartz had apparently been in perfect health a few minutes before he bade his family good-night and went to his room.

Mr. Schwartz was born in Germany, June 18, 1844. He came to this country in 1880, and went first to Minnesota. Later he farmed on St. Joseph's Ridge. Five years ago he retired. A son, Ferdinand, is living upon the Schwartz farm on the ridge. Another son, Carl, of New Lisbon, survives, and a daughter, Mrs. E. C. Krause of this city. Nine grandchildren and two great grandchildren mourn Mr. Schwartz's death. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

in the ranks of railroaders, capitalists, farmers, bankers, financiers and advisers. He was on the board of directors of several banks in Chicago, New York and St. Paul, his son, Louis W. Hill, having the say in the roads he controlled.

Hill's funeral will be held at the house at 2 p. m. Wednesday. This is the only decision regarding the funeral made. Whether Archbishop Ireland, noted Roman Catholic clergyman, will officiate, is problematical, because Hill was not Catholic. Ireland and Hill were close personal friends.

Hill a Practical Man

"We want a workshop not a show-house," was James J. Hill's frequent statement when building the gigantic railroad building, which houses the Northern Pacific and Great Northern offices. His office is one of the smallest and most unassuming in the building. There is not a carpet on the Great Northern side of the building. Hill once fired a railroad president for not knowing the size of a locomotive cylinder.

Newspapers unofficially estimated this afternoon that Hill was worth $200,000,000. The guess, they admitted, was based upon conjecture.

Son Takes Charge

Louis W. Hill, son of the empire builder, became the actual head of the huge Hill interests, immediately after the death of his father, Ralph Budd, whose active influence has been felt throughout the Hill chain of finances, will continue in his present position. Budd was an assistant to Hill.

It seems certain that the National City bank, New York, which owns heavily in Great Northern stock, will exert a mighty influence in the management of the Great Northern. The Rockefeller interests are closely allied with the National City interests.

J. P. Morgan holdings in the Northern Pacific may thus bring the Great Northern and Northern Pacific into active and even bitter competition. Hill had prevented active competition. He controlled both roads.

If She Always Said What She Meant.

"Will you be mine?" he asked. "O, no, I will not be yours," she replied. "but I don't object to going through the ceremony that will give you the right to work your head off in order to buy me all the clothes and jewelry and social pleasure I want."—Houston Chronicle.

Hopes Women Will Adopt This Habit As Well As Men

Glass of hot water each morning helps us look and feel clean, sweet, fresh.

Happy, bright, alert—vigorous and vivacious—a good clear skin; a natural, rosy complexion and freedom from illness are assured only by clean, healthy blood. If only every woman and likewise every man could realize the wonders of the morning inside bath, what a gratifying change would take place.

Instead of the thousands of sickly, anaemic-looking men, women and girls with pasty or muddy complexions; instead of the multitudes of "nerve wrecks," "rundowns," "brain fags" and pessimists we should see a verile, optimistic throng of rosy-cheeked people everywhere.

An inside bath is had by drinking, each morning before breakfast, a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and ten yards of bowels the previous day's indigestible waste, sour fermentations and poisons, thus cleansing, sweetening and freshening the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Those subject to sick headache, biliousness, nasty breath, rheumatism, colds; and particularly those who have a pallid, sallow complexion and who are constipated very often, are urged to obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store which will cost but a trifle but is sufficient to demonstrate the quick and remarkable change in both health and appearance awaiting those who practice internal sanitation. We must remember that inside cleanliness is more important than outside, because the skin does not absorb impurities to contaminate the blood, while the pores in the thirty feet of bowels do.

VETERANS OF TWO WARS ATTEND UPON MEMORIAL SUNDAY

sical program, a feature of which was Ralph Toland's solo, "It is Enough," from "Elijah." The choir sang Barnaby's "O Lord, How Manifold."

In his sermon Mr. Peacock brought out that the memory of its fallen dead is the nation's most precious asset.

"The sacrifice of 600,000 young men at the call of the Union," he said, "has bound together forever states which might have been as broken up as Europe. The 'unknown' dead, as well as the identified thousands who lie in long rows in our national cemeteries belong in an intimate sense, to America as a whole. Such a memory is a solemn and priceless heritage, to be shared in, not simply by members of families, but by everyone who can feel that quality of spirit which marks the true American."

"In addition to a memory of the fallen, America has also the Grand Army, an active, patriotic brotherhood of men who know from experience what the nation is worth. They were made one in hardships and suffering. It can be imagined what this young experiment in democracy might have been achieved on the basis of a common desire in the hearts of those who would come to the Land of Freedom, but now, we have these old men who know through struggle what the nation is worth as our teachers. These veterans love the flag. To them 'Our Country' is no figure of speech. 'The Union' is a fact established in the hearts of blood-brothers."

The speaker paid a tribute, also, to the women of the Relief Corps, representing woman's share in the sacrifice of the Civil war.

"Woman's part," he said, "while less spectacular, was even harder to bear. A man could march to the front in the ranks, led by the drum, with his spirit stirred by impassioned oratory, feted all the way. He could even go to death in one wild rush which conquered fear. But woman, at home, had to return to the deserted hearth. There was hunger and the care of little ones as her part, the dread of war as it can be felt from a distance. She could tell a story of making ends meet with war-time prices, often with the flour-barrel empty and the children needing clothing. The fact of war would come home to her as she scanned the names of the dead of the missing, living over again and again the terrors of bereavement."

Mr. Peacock urged that every young American who is capable of appreciating the spiritual facts upon which our country must build, turn out on Decoration Day, not simply to honor the soldiers but to increase patriotism and to do one's common duty toward those who paid the price of our national peace and union.

More Than Praise of Arms

Rev. Longbrake, under the title "The Honor and Integrity of American Patriotism," said in part:

"While we would keep this day sacred to its fundamental purpose, that of specially and appropriately paying merited tribute to the soldier-dead of our republic, yet we would not bestow our praise in any boastful or contracted spirit. Our praise is incomplete if we laud only 'arms and the man', only those fought at the battle's front."

"Among other things, we should remember that even in the history of our wars, we must in justice link the name of woman, at every point, with that of man. While she suffered, in many respects, the harder portion in the trials of war, that of bitterest suspense, privation, and sorrowing, and oftentimes in gloomiest solitude, at home, yet she also was often found serving heroically on the hellish field of bloodshed, now in work of army hospital, with lint and lotion, with bandage fine—or with just that peculiar sympathy, cheer, comfort and consolation that only a woman's grace can give. So on this day let us pay tribute to the manhood of our nation, but to its womanhood also. For no war of principle would ever be fought to the finish except for the tenacious courage and sacrifice of women."

Measure of Service

"And how shall we measure the value of the soldiers of our republic, their deeds and war service? In order to answer this question, we must need answer three others: What was the object of their fighting? How did they acquire themselves? What did they accomplish by their victories? With the bare exception of our war with Mexico, in 1846, the very highest motives, love of the right, sympathy for others, and devotion to God's great ends for mankind upon earth, have inspired and guided the armies of the United States."

In 1776 the nation declared: 'All men are endowed with certain inalienable rights; among these are life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.' It was in that fundamental sacred principle that the soldiers who secured our national independence found their motive, and upon which they mutually pledged to each other their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor."

"In 1861 the South ardently believed that it was right in its claim of holding human slaves, and states' rights, and, if necessary, secession. The North was just as ardent in strong opposition. It was trembling in the balance, in danger of destruction, the very heart and soul of everything that meant democracy, human rights and the Union. It was in these three sacred principles that the Grand Army of the Republic found its motives. Its veterans fought that this nation, under God, should have a new birth of freedom, and that government of the people, by the people, and for the people should perish from the earth. How grandly they struggled, what wonderful results they produced, cannot be described in any language.

Cuba in the very shadow of our nation with its high ideals for human welfare everywhere, the heel of the Spanish tyrant was grinding the life out of a helpless people. For thirty years unspeakable atrocities had been heaped upon them in spite of warnings from our government. The cry from Cuba seemed clear, 'Thy brother's blood calleth to thee from the ground!' If God ever spoke to our strong nation to protect the weak it was in 1898. These younger veterans among us answered the call. And Cuba is today a happy island of free people, while the Philippines, under our generous care, are on the sure way to independence.

Not to Glorify War

"This Memorial Sunday is not to glorify war! But it is to keep fresh in our minds how, in large part, our true national greatness has been achieved. If our nation ever comes to the time that it will forget the high standards of patriotism and sacrifice, as revealed in the wars we have noted, that soon it will begin to march backward toward decay. Pray God that there may never again experience another Gettysburg in our land! But this Memorial day gives us fresh evidence that its lessons are not forgotten, that young men are just as ready, with motives just as fine and ideal, with courage just as dependable to protect American life, liberty and sacred honor, as were any men in the past."

BILLIE BURKE IN NEW SERIAL DRAWS MANY TO MAJESTIC

Audiences exceeding the expectations of the Majestic theater management yesterday witnessed the initial appearance of "Gloria's Romance," the new Kleins serial photoplay featuring Miss Billie Burke, recently seen here in "Peggy" Miss Burke's first appearance on the screen.

From various angles the film is classed as one of the big movie hits of the year. Former salary records for single pictures are said to be broken by Miss Burke. The story is penned by notables, Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes, and is fetchingly entertaining. The photoplay is of the highest class, and the well known star is seen at her best.

The Majestic will feature the serial along with its regular Triangle program for twenty weeks. Miss Burke will be seen every Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

ARTHUR KAULFUSS BREAKS LEG AT "Y"

A fall in the Y. M. C. A. handball court this morning resulted in a broken leg for Arthur F. Kaulfuss, 714 South Seventh street. Both bones were snapped at the ankle, and the youth will be laid up for more than a month. Dr. G. P. Reay was called after the accident.

"GLORIA'S ROMANCE"

IN THE LA CROSSE TRIBUNE

ON behalf of the Majestic Theatre I take great pleasure in announcing that I have purchased the serial rights of this unusual story, and have contracted to procure its publication, as a once-a-week serial in THE LA CROSSE TRIBUNE.

My reason for securing locally the publication of Mr. and Mrs. Rupert Hughes' famous novel, which also appears serially in the Chicago Tribune, is that it will enable all patrons of the MAJESTIC who are following the delightful and inimitable in the motion picture production of the charming romance, to read the story each week in advance of the installment released at the theater.

THE FIRST INSTALLMENT OF "GLORIA'S ROMANCE" will appear in THE LA CROSSE TRIBUNE tomorrow, (Tuesday), and thereafter there will be an installment in the Saturday Tribune for nineteen consecutive weeks.

EXCAVATE FOR TWO RUSHFORD HOMES

John and Andrew Eggen
Build on Site of Blacksmith Shop; Sixteen to Graduate

RUSHFORD, Minn., May 29.—(Special.)—Work of excavating has commenced for the two new residences soon to be erected by John and Andrew Eggen. The site chosen is that of the Eggen blacksmith shop and wagon works, east of the England warehouse. Two houses will be built there for rental and both will make pleasant homes.

New Front
Gray's Variety store boasts of a new glass front, which means added light for the store and likewise much better display room for the goods.

Sixteen Graduates
Dainty invitations are out for the commencement exercises of the Rushford schools, the gathering to be at the opera house on Friday evening, or June 2nd. Hon. S. G. Iverson, a former Rushford man, will be down from St. Paul to deliver the address of the evening. A class of sixteen will graduate, twelve girls and four boys. They are: Elsie Bantly, Madeline Bjerke, Mina Bjerke, Louis Ekern, Harris Engh, Frances Foss, Viola Halverson, Annette Helleland, Gladys Prinzing, Ona Rowlee, Dora Swenson, Archie Shirven, Esterre Tofsted, Mabel Tungland, Josephine Vaagen, Walter Webster.

Local and Personal
Mrs. Enoch Moe and daughter have been guests of the Moe family here for some time, left last week for Preston to spend a week or so with relatives there. From Preston they will go to their home at Langdon, Canada, at which place Mr. Moe has charge of a lumber yard.

Mrs. John Bratland, Miss Almna Grinde, her father, E. A. Grinde and brother Newman were recent La Crosse shoppers.

The new residence of John Frisvold is going up rapidly under the direction of a number of carpenters. When finished, it will add another very pretty and modern residence to the already beautiful residence street of Stevens avenue.

The Misses Minnie and Pearl Colbenson have recently returned from Lake City, where they were wounded for a time of their sister, Mrs. Soren Backman and family.

James Boynton of Pine Creek valley, has recently purchased a new Oakland car from a local firm.

O. T. Newhouse of Houston county has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Teman Lee, who reside in South Rushford.

Miss Axness, who recently completed a successful term of school in the Worra district, a few miles from here, spent about two weeks at her home in Ettrick, returning a few days ago to commence a term of parochial school in the same neighborhood as that of the winter term.

Miss Gyda Maglesson, who for some time past has been the leader of the Campfire Girls here, finds time, despite her household duties, to take many a "hike" with her little band. That the work is appreciated by all the girls is plainly evident and we predict that the Boy Scouts will have to "go some" if they keep up with the girls' record of cross-country walks, picnics, etc.

Miss Crampton, Rushford librarian and Ralph Baerman, the janitor of the library have planted several flower-beds on the vacant lot east of the library and thanks to these efficient workers, the place will soon blossom into beauty.

The members of the Loyal Temperance Legion met at the home of Mrs. L. Tazland on Saturday afternoon of this week, to spend their regular hour or so of work and fun. Due greatly to the energetic efforts of the band's director, Miss Cook, the members now number twenty-eight, instead of fourteen, as when she first became its director.

Miss Sadie Maloney, who came to this city to attend the funeral services of her sister, the late Mrs. Elmer Bidwell, returned to her home in Plato, Canada, a few days ago.

Silas Shirven has been appointed carrier on Rural Route No. 2, Rushford, taking the place of Peter Alm, who resigned the position several months ago.

Nearly every pretty girl is a piano thumper and nearly every homely girl is a good cook.

WOUNDED FLYERS RETURN

PARIS, May 29.—Lieutenant William Thaw and Kiffin Rockwell, American aviators who were wounded in an engagement with German fliers near Verdun, are returning to Paris for a brief convalescence. Their places will be taken by two other Americans, Clyde Bailey and C. C. Johnson.

Some men try to get ahead in this world by holding others back.

"ANURIC!"

THE NEWEST
DISCOVERY IN CHEMISTRY

This is a recent discovery of Doctor Pierce, who is head of the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute at Buffalo, N. Y. Experiments at Doctor Pierce's Hospital for several years proved that there is no other eliminator of uric acid that can be compared to it. For those easily recognized symptoms of inflammation—as backache, scalding urine and frequent urination, as well as sediment in the urine, or if uric acid in the blood has caused rheumatism, it is simply wonderful how surely "Anuric" acts. The best of results are always obtained in cases of acute rheumatism in the joints, in gravel and gout, and invariably the pains and stiffness which so frequently and persistently accompany the disease rapidly disappear.

Go to your nearest drug store and simply ask for a 50-cent package of "Anuric," manufactured by Dr. Pierce, or send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce for a large trial package. If you suspect kidney or bladder trouble, send him a sample of your water and describe symptoms. Doctor Pierce's chemist will examine it, without fee or charge.

NOTE:—French scientists affirm that "Anuric" is thirty-seven times more active than lithia in eliminating uric acid, and is a harmless but reliable chemical compound that may be safely given to children, but should be used only by grown-ups who actually wish to restore their kidneys to perfect health, by conscientiously using one box—more in extreme cases—as "Anuric" is by far the most perfect kidney and bladder corrector obtainable.

Dr. Pierce's Pellets are the original Little Liver Pills. One little Pellet for a laxative—three for a cathartic.

ST. MARY'S LOSES TO THE NORMAL IN HARD-FOUGHT GAME

In the best of ball ever played on the new normal field, the La Crosse state normal nine defeated St. Mary's college of Winona last Saturday afternoon by the close score of 1 to 0. La Crosse scored its winning run in the opening frame after which each team was held scoreless. The closest visitors came to recording at the plate was in the sixth inning. Genthny of Winona poled a neat three bagger to deep center but tried to stretch it into a homer and was caught at the plate by a neat peg from Immell who relayed to Grounds.

The La Crosse team as a whole had a slight edge on the visitors despite the fact that Meinert was forced to leave early in the game to participate in the field meet. Hansen of the normal held his opponents to one safe drive exclusive of the almost fatal three base drive. Wachter, at catch, who was appearing for the first time this season, kept the Winonans hugging the sacks whenever they were fortunate enough to get on the bases. Hansen was given excellent support, only one misplay being registered against his teammates. La Crosse got to Hogan for three hits and three errors were charged against St. Mary's. The La Crosse score came as a result of an error by the visiting first baseman, a stolen base, a passed ball, and a two base drive by Captain Grounds.

Scores:
St. Mary's . . . 000000000—0 2 3
La Crosse . . . 100000000—1 3 1

TWO POPULAR STARS TO BE SEEN HERE

Hamilton Revelle and Marguerite Snow, two of the brightest stars in the Metro firmament, will be seen on the screen at the Casino today and tomorrow in "The Half Million Bribe," a gripping five part mystery story produced by the Columbia Pictures corporation. "The Half Million Bribe" is a picturization of the highly successful novel and play, "The Red Mouse," which was written by William Hamilton Osborne.

Both Mr. Revelle and Miss Snow are provided with roles admirably suited to their exceptional talents. Mr. Revelle is cast with the part of a social idler, whose sole activities consist in his spending money given him by his wealthy wife. It requires a severe shock, through an unusual twist of fate, which brings him to the edge of life, itself and then to poverty, before he finds himself, makes amends and proves himself a man after all.

Miss Snow plays the part of the wife, who believes in her husband and remains at his side through his profligacy and his adversity, and is directly responsible for his reformation. It is a typical "Pretty Peggy" part, and is bound to win this popular star many new admirers.

The ballot was so cast.
Supervisor Davis responded to a call for a speech.
By the Clerk:
To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: The undersigned respectfully petitions your honorable body to refund to him the amount paid by him on Tax Certificate No. 46 of the sale of May 19, 1914 for the sum of $3.30 together with interest on the same at the rate of six per cent from that date as provided by law. Your petitioner respectfully shows that the said tax certificate is illegal and wholly void as there is no such property as is described in the said tax certificate, to-wit the N. W. 1/4 of the S. W. 1/4 of Section 7, Town 17, Range 8 West, wherefore the petitioner prays that the said tax certificate be refunded as provided for by law. The tax certificate herein referred to is hereto attached and made a part of this petition.
Respectfully submitted,
N. C. BACHELLER,
La Crosse, Wis., May 1, 1916.
Referred to Illegal Assessment committee and district attorney.
By Supervisor Moran:
To the Honorable Chairman and Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: As per our instructions at last meeting your committee on buildings and grounds have had the matter of jail improvements under consideration and with Contractor Peter Nelson have carefully gone over the building in an effort to arrive at the most practical plan of putting the building in satisfactory condition. Some alterations of the plans of the committee as submitted at our last meeting, have been worked out, while additional improvements, as suggested by the different members after their visit to the jail, have been considered together with the estimated cost. These estimates run as follows, plumbing $1,800.00, improvements on lower floor, including new entrance, $1,850.00, turnkey's office, $650.00, calking and weather-stripping, $400.00. Total, $4,700.00.
For the sake of brevity your committee has omitted entering in detail in this report each contemplated improvement, but submit them as a whole for your consideration.
Respectfully submitted,
J. H. MORAN,
A. C. KAYLOR,
JOHN ASH,
Buildings and Grounds Committee.
Supervisor Winter moved that the report be made a special order of business for 2 o'clock, p. m.
Carried.
By Supervisor Moran:
To the Honorable Chairman and Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: Your committee begs leave to report having visited the jail on May 13th. On the previous night one of the prisoners had attempted to escape, by sawing a bar and gaining access to the air shaft, from where he passed by way of the attic to the hall on second floor, where he was discovered by the turnkey. A common hack saw blade was used to cut the bar, but no information could be gotten as to how this came to be in his possession. We found 25 male and 3 female prisoners in the jail on this date.

Respectfully submitted,
J. H. MORAN,
A. C. KAYLOR,
JOHN L. ASH,
Buildings and Grounds committee.
Adopted.
By Supervisor Guenther:
To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: Resolved by the County Board of Supervisors that there be, and hereby is appropriated, the sum of Four Hundred Fifty Dollars ($450.00) to be added to the appropriation heretofore made for the purpose of the construction of a lighting line and wiring at the poor farm and that said money be paid out in the same manner as directed by the previous resolution appropriating the sum of One Thousand Dollars.
E. W. GUENTHER,
Referred to Ways and Means committee.

By Supervisor Winter:
To the Honorable Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: Resolved by the County Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin,
That there be, and hereby is, appropriated out of the general fund the sum of Five Thousand ($5,000.00) Dollars, or so much as may be needed therefor, for the purpose of making repairs at the county jail, the same to be done under the direction and supervision of the committee on buildings and grounds of the county board, either by contract or by day labor as said committee may deem in the best interest of the county.
Resolved further, that the chairman and clerk of this board be, and hereby are, authorized to draw orders to pay for said repairs, upon bills properly audited by said committee.

By Supervisor Berger:
To the Honorable Chairman and Board of Supervisors of La Crosse County, Wisconsin:
Gentlemen: The petition of the undersigned town board of the Town of Burns, in said county, respectfully shows:
That the said Town of Burns, at the annual town meeting held on the 4th day of April, 1916, did vote to construct four certain bridges hereinafter described; that the estimated cost of the construction of the said bridges has been made by the engineers of the State Highway Commission and is hereinafter stated; that the said town at its town meeting did, by resolution, provide for the payment of one-half the cost of said bridges and levy a tax upon the taxable property of said town for such purpose and did authorize and instruct the town clerk of said town to enter the amount of such levy in the tax roll of said town.
The said bridges are described and cost estimated as follows:
Frank Stetzer bridge, in the N. W. 1/4 of Section 12, Town 18, Range 5 West, estimated cost, $700.00.
Walnut Grove bridge No. 1, in the S. W. 1/4 of Section 13, Town 18, Range 5 West, estimated cost, $600.00.
Walnut Grove bridge No. 2, in the S. W. 1/4 of Section 13, Town 18, Range 5 West, estimated cost, $600.00.
Henry Wedel bridge, in the N. E. 1/4 of Section 23, Town 18, Range 5, estimated cost, $550.00.
Wherefore, your petitioners pray your honorable body to appropriate one-half the cost of such bridges, to-wit: the sum of $1,225.00, and cause the said sum of such appropriation to be levied upon the taxable property of the county as will, with the amount appropriated and levied by the Town of Burns, defray the cost of constructing such bridges.
Dated at the Town of Burns this 15th day of May, 1916.
ORRIN FLETCHER,
LUD CHRISTOPHERSON,
THEODORE PISKE,
Town Board of Burns.
RESOLVED, by the County Board of Supervisors of the County of La Crosse, Wisconsin, that the sum of $1,225.00 Dollars, be and the same is hereby appropriated and set aside for the purpose of defraying one-half the cost of erecting and constructing four certain bridges in the Town of Burns, described as follows:
The said bridges are described and cost estimated as follows:
Frank Stetzer bridge, in the N. W. 1/4 of Section 12, Town 18, Range 5 West, estimated cost, $700.00.
Walnut Grove bridge No. 1, in the S. W. 1/4 of Section 13, Town 18, Range 5 West, estimated cost, $600.00.

SPECIAL REPORTERS TO COVER MEETS FOR UNITED PRESS
News Service to Send Best Men to National Conventions at Chicago and St. Louis
NEW YORK, May 29.—In covering the national convention at Chicago and St. Louis next month, the United Press will pursue the same course that it has followed throughout the European war, the Mexican embargo and on all other extraordinary news events. It is the United Press' theory that its own staff correspondents, to whom big news stories are every day occurrences, are best equipped to meet the demands of convention reporting. At both Chicago and St. Louis, the United Press will depend entirely upon a specially chosen staff of its best men selected from the New York, Washington and larger bureau staffs.
The convention service will be under general charge of President Roy W. Howard, assisted by Fred S. Ferguson, acting manager. It will include:
Perry Arnold, Lowell Mellet, George E. Martin, Karl A. Bickel, Robert J. Bender, Carl D. Groat, J. P. Yoder, N. C. Parke, A. J. Eldred and H. L. Rennick.
Special wires will be looped direct to the United Press reservation, next to the speaker's platform of the convention halls in both Chicago and St. Louis. In both cities, a special work room will be fitted up, under the speaker's rostrum. Superintendent of Telegraph W. F. Lynch will be in general charge of the wire arrangements, and it is probable the actual sending from the hall will be done by Roscoe Johnson, chief operator of the Chicago division, and rated as one of the star keymen in the country.
The United Press working headquarters at Chicago will be Rooms 1608-1610 and 1612, Congress Hotel; at St. Louis, Rooms 134 and 136, Jefferson Hotel.
HOUSE NOT GOING TO EUROPE AGAIN
WASHINGTON, May 29.—Colonel E. M. House, confidential adviser of President Wilson, has no present intention of visiting Europe in the near future on a peace mission.
Officials expressed interest today in Berlin rumors that Colonel House was expected to revisit Europe shortly, but said the reports were untrue.

DELAYED RALLY
DISASTROUS FOR SLIPPING CUBS

CINCINNATI, May 29.—A ninth inning batting rally, together with Saier's error, enabled Cincinnati to win the last game of the series with Chicago here on Sunday, 3 to 2. The local team scored in the first inning. Neale doubled, but was caught between bases when Chase grounded to short. Chase then stole second and scored on Wingo's single.

In the ninth Neale and Chase singled and Wingo reached first on Saier's error, filling the bases. Neale was caught at the plate on Mollwitz' infield hit. Mitchell, who batted for Herzog, hit to left, Chase and Wingo scoring. The score: R H E Chicago, 3; Cincinnati, 2.

Batteries: Seaton and Fischer; Schulz, Mosely and Wingo.

COPSEY GETS GOOD
START FOR YEAR
AGAINST HOUSTON

Fay Copsey had a little too much on the ball yesterday for the Houston sluggers, and the W. B. U. Athletes won their game in the Minnesota town 5 to 4. The Ferryville star, in his first game of the year, made twelve Minnesota slices great chunks from the atmosphere. The Athletes play tomorrow at Bangor.

The score: Houston, 5; Minneapolis, 4. Houston, 5; Minneapolis, 4. Batteries: Copsey and Tanke; Foss and Anderson.

The Reds won out in the ninth after two were gone. With the sacks filled and none gone, the Cubs retired the next two, then sent in Pitcher Charlie Mitchell to bat in the pinch. They batted the ball over Mann's head and two Reds shot across the plate and the game was over.

MEREDITH STARS
IN HARVARD MEET
WON BY CORNELL

BOSTON, Mass., May 29.—Cornell won the annual intercollegiate games in the Harvard stadium Saturday afternoon by the impressive score of 4 to Yale's 29.

The two California universities combined to roll up twenty-two points, when the smallness of their squads is considered, was a marvelous feat, outclassing Harvard, Pennsylvania and other eastern "big" colleges.

Meredith's Record Try

Tom Meredith of the University of Pennsylvania, broke the world's quarter mile record. Meredith covered the 440 yards in 47 2-5 seconds, two-fifths of a second faster than Maxey Long's great effort, which stood unbroken for fifteen years.

Riley of Dartmouth finished less than a yard behind the great Pennsylvanian, while Crime of Cornell was third. Wilcox of Harvard, who led the field for 300 yards, could not stand the gaff.

Meredith created another intercollegiate record when he won the half mile in 1 minute, 53 seconds.

F. S. Murray of Leland Stanford set a new intercollegiate record of fifteen seconds for the 120 yard high hurdles. He easily bested Gubb of Cornell, Preble of Pennsylvania, and his team mate, J. K. Norton.

SETS FIVE MILE RECORD

CHICAGO, May 29.—Ray Creveston of Springfield, Mass., held the world's record today for driving the fastest five miles on a motorcycle. Creveston broke the record yesterday when he made the distance in 4:21 4-5. Glen Stokes of Los Angeles and Bodio of Phoenix, Ariz., were second and third respectively. Creveston also won the ten and fifteen mile events.

The Cubs continued their downward slide by losing to Cincinnati. Tom Seaton pitched a great game and made two hits, but luck was against him.

Bob Groom of the Browns, lost his jinx on the Tigers. The Detroiters drove him from the slab in the third, after running up five runs.

LA CROSSE TIES
MILWAUKEE NORTH
FOR SECOND PLACE

MADISON, Wis., May 29.—Milwaukee West Division High school took first place in the Wisconsin state interscholastic meet at Camp Randall Saturday, with a total of 23 1/2 points. Milwaukee North and La Crosse tied for second, with 17. Madison was next with 11, and Merrill followed with 9. Milwaukee Riverside, last year's winner, took but 5 1/2 points, the La Crosse and Merrill athletes outclassing most of Coach Kahle's stars.

Early in the meet the La Crosse and Merrill squads jumped into the lead, upsetting the dope, but Milwaukee West came back strong in the later events and won out easily.

No records were broken, as the competition was not as keen as in other years.

Scores: Milwaukee West Division, 23; Milwaukee North Division, 17; La Crosse, 17; Madison, 11; Merrill, 9; Waukesha, 6; Milwaukee Riverside, 5 1/2; Wausau, 5; New London, 5; Milwaukee South, 5; Green Lake, 5; Darlington, 5; Milwaukee Washington, 4; Stoughton, 4; Sheboygan, 3; Chippewa Falls, 1.

Good attendance and fine scores marked the weekly shoot of the La Crosse Gun club, J. V. Winter appearing for the first time this season, distanced all amateurs in the 50 target event and also led the field in the doubles. W. G. Lowe, another new comer this season, was a very close second while C. C. Mitchell, professional, was high gun.

Weaver scored from third in the first frame of the opening round on a delayed double steal. Nease played the second part of the double.

Jack Nease, the Pacific Coast leaguer rookie, uncorked the hit which won the first game for the hose.

It looks like the threatened shake-up has aroused the Sox out of the last four games they have won one and tied one.

Either the outfielders are backing up for 'em or the swatters have struck a slump.

The Indians are now a game and a half behind the Senators.

NORMAL RECORD IS SET WHEN SCHOOL
DEFEATS 'Y' TEAM

Taylor Swings Discus 114 Feet as Team Swamps Track Stars of the Association

The normal track team defeated the city Y. M. C. A. in a walkaway on Saturday afternoon, netting a total of 88 points to the Y's 29. At no stage in the game did the Y have a look-in, their only first being made by Keeler in the shot with a heave of 41 feet, 7 inches.

In the relay the normal men were running a big handicap, so big, in fact, that it could not be overcome. Sputh gave the Y team two of his sprints as a nucleus. To this was added an 80 yard start, and two of the Y team were forced to run but 220 yards. This big lead could not be cut to a win by the four regular relay men of the normal.

Braun Shows Up Well

The results of the century run upset the dope. Ryan who was expected to win handily was pocketed making it impossible to break away. Grausnick lead Evans, consequently, and Ryan took third. Inasmuch as Ryan lost out in the 100 yard and did not enter the 220 at all, a dark horse, Braun, of the normal, carried off the individual honors of the meet. Braun was a sprinter on the Milwaukee normal team last year but because of La Crosse's strength in the sprints he could not be given a place in this field. Coach Sputh, accordingly, turned him into the hurdles with the result that he hopped the low hurdles, tied for first in the high, and took first in the broad jump, winning 14 points for his team.

Taylor broke the school record in the discus. The normal captain hurled the weight 114 feet. His previous record made last year had been 111 feet, 9 inches.

May Mean Shakeup

The result of the meet last Saturday is bound to bring about a change in the personnel of the normal team before next Saturday when the state normal meet is to be held in this city. It is obvious that Braun will be given a berth but just whose place he will take is the question. Inasmuch as Braun beat out Adair in the high hurdles and as Adair was also forced to give way to Meinert in the high jump, Coach Sputh has stated it is most probable that Braun and Adair will exchange places as

BY IZOLA FORRESTER

GRIP AND NEURASTHENIA

There is a form of neurasthenia that follows the grip. Doctors call it "post-grippal" neurasthenia. One of the foremost medical authorities of New York city in a lecture in the international clinics, said:

"Broadly speaking, every victim of the grip will suffer from post-grippal neurasthenia also. Lowering of nervous tone with increased irritability is the most striking effect of the disease, languor of mind and body, disturbed, fitful sleep and vague pains in the head and elsewhere. The treatment calls for rest and a tonic."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, a non-alcoholic tonic, are particularly suited for building up the blood and strengthening the nerves after an attack of the grip. The rich, red blood expels the lingering germs from the system and transforms despondent grip victims into cheerful, healthy, happy men and women.

If you have had the grip get a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills now from the nearest drug store and begin the treatment at once.

On request we will send you a free pamphlet, "Building Up the Blood," which contains a chapter on the grip. Address the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.

were meager in spite of all good intentions. Some of last year's Fourth of July bunting and flags, some old portraits of Grant and McClellan, Lincoln and Stanton, and two old army muskets crossed over the front door. "As long as we haven't any veterans left—"

She stopped short. Buell Center was fearfully short on spectacles of any kind. Out of the company boys who had marched away from the little triangular green so many years ago, the remnant had gradually fallen asleep in life's last bivouac over in the little churchyard behind the church. Still there were left the sons on the day's observance, and the daughters were attending to most of the work.

"There's old Mr. Millard—"

Kit stopped, too, and frankly giggled.

"If he'd be willing to let you take any of his relics."

"But they'd be Southern."

"Just Virginia. Everybody loves Virginia. Anyhow, who'd know which side they came from? Canteens and things like that are all the same. And he's got some old swords, too, and an old army blanket and his saddle, and lots of odds and ends of things."

"If you ask Walt, Kit, he'd get them for you."

Kit meditated. Her reddish brown hair was rumpled curly, her arms smudged with dust and grime, and even on the tip of her nose there was a dab, but her eyes completely counteracted all impression of frivolity conveyed by her appearance. They were large and very serious eyes, brown as a moth's wing, and just now uncompromising.

"I won't ask him. He told me the whole thing was an idiotic mixup that should have been avoided by cool heads and he said the north should have paid for every slave and not impoverished the South, and he said that cotton and politics lay at the back of it."

"Oh, well, what do you expect. He's just out of college, and thinks he could take the world just as it stands and remold it perfectly to his own heart's desire."

"He's quarreled with his grandfather anyhow, and Mr. Millard won't let him inside the house, he says."

"Then we must get them." In all emergencies Orrie rose supreme to trifling obstacles. We've got to have them, and I'd love to get the old man to make a speech. He's the sole survivor of the war even if he was on the wrong side, and I'd love to have him get up and talk. I'm going to see him."

That morning about 11 as old Mr. Millard came slowly and painfully along the old stone flagged walk from the well to the barn, he faced two visitors—Kit in her very prettiest gown of white, with little green and pink sprigs, and a big white hat

The Coming Baby!
Hooray! Hooray!

Nothing else can so completely endear us to the present and the future as the expected arrival of a baby. But in the meantime the comfort of the mother is of vast importance. There is a splendid external remedy known as "Mother's Friend" which exerts a wonderful influence upon the expanding muscles. They become more pliant, stretch without undue pain, make the period of one of pleasant anticipation instead of agony. In a series of splendid letters from all over the country mothers tell of the great help "Mother's Friend" was to them. Even grandmothers tell the wonderful story to their own daughters about to enter the state of motherhood. Get a bottle of "Mother's Friend" today of your nearest druggist. drooping around her face, and behind her Orrie, plump and positive. "Let me carry the bucket for you, please, Mr. Millard," she said. "How lovely your lilacs look. Those tall white ones are beautiful. We want some to mix with the pink swamp apple and dogwood branches, you know, to decorate the hall."

Only a grant issued from Mr. Millard's lips, but he relinquished the bucket thankfully. His eyebrows drew in regular pent-house lids over his keen, suspicious old eyes, and his long white mustache and imperial gave him still a military air. When they reached the side porch of the old house in which he had lived alone for years, Kit stated their errand. Could the Daughters of the Veterans borrow his war relics?

"I ain't got any folks buried up this side of the line," he said shortly. "I reckon I don't want to show anything."

"Oh, but please; we haven't hardly anything," Orrie broke in, and for fifteen minutes the two argued, one on each side of the old chap, begging and explaining. When they finished, there was a subdued twinkle in his eyes, and he looked at Kit.

"Ain't you the girl my Walt's been going with?" he asked cheerfully. Up to her forehead, Kit blushed, but stood her ground.

"Then why don't you get him on your side, too? He wouldn't shoot a gun if all creation was climbing over his back fence. He'd go out and take down the fence to save them the trouble of climbing over it."

"Mr. Millard"—Kit leaned forward now in dead earnest—"you're the only man left here in Buell who knows really what war is. Won't you get up and make a speech to-morrow?"

"Me? Never made a speech in my life, but I believe in being ready!" He thumped the porch rail heavily. "And what happened back in '61 ain't neither here nor there when it comes to what's best for today. You can have all my things if you'll get Walt to say he'd fight if the rest had to. Maybe some day his peace of the world idea's going to happen

But meantime, while there's hell a-poppin', you just get him to say he'd fight if the rest had to. That's all."

"Well," gasped Orrie as they went back to the village, "if that wasn't delicious! Now, we'll have to see Walt."

"I'll see Walt," Kit answered firmly, and when they came to the main street up she went all alone to the little law office that Walter Millard had opened up over the drug store. He sat at his desk by the south window, a big bunch of purple lilacs in a white pitcher near by, and the fragrance of trees in bloom wafted in from many orchards. From where he sat he could look directly down on the green and the little white church with its steeple pointing heavenward like a finger and behind it the little burial ground. The color left his face at sight of his visitor, but he was grave and courteous and listened to all she had to say.

"You know how I feel, Kit," he said finally. "I can't go back on my principles just because it's Memorial Day. If the men of that time had kept their heads there wouldn't be these graves to warn us today of the folly of shooting your fellowmen down over some political issue."

"Then you needn't come to see me again," Kit flashed back at him. "I wouldn't marry any man who wouldn't fight if the rest did, just as your grandfather says."

Yet all the success of the celebration could not take away the bitterness and hopelessness. They were both college bred, children of the later-day bringing up in the little New England town, and proud. Kit, standing beside the other girls on the little green, listened while the two selectmen and the town doctor made their speeches, followed by the preacher and the superintendent of schools in this district. Pretty soon old Aunt Nelly Bickman, who was 84, was standing up on the wooden box, telling how she'd gone as a nurse through the war and what a horror it all was, and she concluded thus:

"And now we can say God bless them all, every one of the them, blue and gray, every last mother's son!"

Orrie helped her down, and then laboriously but resolutely old Mr. Millard took her place. A cheer went up from the crowd, and he smiled. Right in front of him was Kit, expectant and wide-eyed, and behind her, tall and silent, stood Walt.

"What I've come here to say, friends and neighbors," began the old chap—"what I've come here to say is this: I ain't any speechifier nor orator, and I ain't sorry that I fought for the side I believed was right, nuther, but I do say this today—United we stand, divided we fall." Let's stand together, back to back, and follow where the old flag calls. That's my message. Walt, get up here and echo it."

He stumbled down, and Kit watched in breathless suspense as Walt stepped forward. There was a heavy hush now. Everybody knew young Millard's sentiments, and knew, too, he was the most promising young man in Buell. He could make a speech with anybody in the state, but now he stood and looked over their heads, over to where the tall white grave stones showed in the quiet village burial ground.

"I would fight if the rest had to," was all he said, very clearly, very firmly. Somebody started up "America," and he found himself beside Kit, holding her hands fast in his. One of the selectmen spoke to him jokingly, half in earnest, "That long speech of yours, Walt, will land you in the legislature next winter."

"It lands me in heaven sooner than that," said Walt. "Kit's just promised to marry me."

GERARD REPORTED
SEEING EARLY END OF EUROPEAN WAR

COPENHAGEN, May 29.—Ambassador Gerard believes that peace proposals will assume definite form within a few months, if not within a few weeks, according to a correspondent of the Munich Zeitung, who interviewed him.

His Future Home Apparent. The man who says he was never scared in all his life ought to begin right now to be afraid of what eternity holds for those who do not tell the truth.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, May 29.—The stock market was so dull during the morning today that news of the death of James J. Hill at St. Paul had no effect and prices showed little change in the slight trading that was in progress.

Hill stocks were inactive. Northwestern was quoted at 120 1/2 soon after the news of the "emperor builder's" death was received, off only 1/4. Northern Pacific stood at 113. The only feature of the market was a sudden decline in General Motors. It dropped to 46 1/2, a decline of 57 1/2 c.

NEW YORK, May 29.—Great Northern preferred sold up 1/4 at 121 at the opening of the stock exchange in the face of reports of the condition of James J. Hill. Northern Pacific was off early a point.

Price changes generally were slight, chandler motor being exception with an advance of 1 1/2. General Motors sold off 57 1/2 at 11:30. The general list showed few changes of importance. Lehigh Valley sold up 1/4 to $2 3/4. Stock sales of 19,000 and 15,000 shares during the two hours after lunch made them the busiest hours since February. The market fluctuated during the last hour and closed fairly strong.

New York Money

NEW YORK, May 29.—Money on call, 2 1/2 per cent; time money, 3 1/2 per cent for six months; prime mercantile, 3 1/4 to 3 1/2 per cent. Bar silver: London, 33 3/4 d; New York, 70 1/2 c.

Demand sterling, 4.75 11-16.

Kansas City Livestock

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 29.—Cattle—Receipts, 14,000; market 10 and 15c lower; steers, $7.50 to $9.75; cows and heifers, $5.75 to $9.85; calves, $6.50 to $11. Hogs—Receipts, 15,000; market 5 to 10c lower; bulk, $9.40 to $9.65; heavy, $9.60 to $9.70; medium, $9.50 to $9.65; light, $9.35 to $9.60. Sheep—Receipts, 9,000; market weak; lambs, $9.75 to $12.00; ewes, $7.50 to $9.00; stockers and feeders, $6.50 to $10.50.

Chicago Livestock

CHICAGO, May 29.—The hog market closed weak and down ten cents today. Estimated receipts for tomorrow 18,000; top for hogs was $9.80. Cattle closed 25 cents lower with the top $10.65; heavy receipts were responsible for the decline. Sheep were off half a dollar, little activity was shown; top for sheep $8.35; lambs, $10.65.

UNION STOCK YARDS, Ill., May 29.—Hogs—Receipts 42,000; market dull, 5c lower; mixed and butchers, $9.25 to $9.80; good heavy, $9.60 to $9.75; rough heavy, $9.25 to $9.40; light, $9.10 to $9.70; pigs, $7.25 to $9.10.
